R. TUPPER AT HOME

R IS MET BY A MASONIC BROTHER

The Takes Him Around to the Saddened Old Home.

TUPPER'S STRANGE CONDUCT

Showers Torrents of Abuse on the Head of the Doctor, and Taunts Him with Mrs. Vanderwerker.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., September 23 cial.]-A solitary Mason brother greeted Rev. Dr. Tupper as he stepped off the clock Missouri Pacific train this even-

A hearty grasp of the hand, a hurried, pered consultation, lasting a few secand, and with a low "this way, doctor," Dr. Tupper was led by an obscure route i carriage in the rear of the no observance roused, and there Dr. Tupper, who here only a few months ago, with ed erect and face beaming, returned to desolated home and the suffering

The doctor and his comrade drove a few locks, and alighted at the office of a minent physician of the city. After a ltation here, lasting half an hour, the nce of which could not be learned, the doctor and his comrade proceeded to the home of the unhappy wife.

A Cold Meeting. meeting was full of pathos-nay, tragedy. Not a word of welcome did the ren. A few bitter recriminations, and he turned coldly away, and walked around red boy passed along the street whistling plaintive ditty, called "Oh, You Break My rt." It was only a trifle, but it invested is side story with a deeper, sadder meanby reason of the incident.

The doctor asked brokenly, "Imogene, may me the children?" queer rasping coincidence, a little col-

Mrs. Tupper Obdurate. The doctor finally induced his wife to around to the front of the house in, and they sat down to talk the mat over, but the talking was all on Mrs. apper's side, and she showered a volley of andering but bitter recriminations upon the doctor, and reiterated over and over in, her unalterable determination to have othing more to do with the doctor.

Pleading All in Vain. All this pleading and protests were in in. It was in vain that he begged her return to Atlanta with him. It was vain him to assure her that |she was laborunder an hallucination regarding the nacy which she imagined to exist be-m him and Mrs. Vanderwerker. She deaf to all entreaties and assur s. She would have nothing to say but tter accusations and cutting sarcasm in swer to everything the doctor said.

. The Wife's Conduct. It must be confessed, without going into ne side or the other, that Mrs. Tupper's luct tonight was slightly eratic. She was laboring under a fierce excitement, and all the outraged feelings which, whether for cause or not, she might be expected to affer, the excitement she strove bravely to suppress, but the result was only a dignified hysteria, which alternated between fits of weeping and periods of icy, cutting sarcasm and bitter recriminations.

Dr. Tupper Talks. Dr. Tupper cried like a child when asked by The Constitution correspondent if he had anything to say. He said: "Nothing. I do not want to be inter-

"Nothing. I do not want to be interam here to take my wife back to Atlanta, I can persuade her to go."
"How long will you remain here?" was

"I want to go back to my work as soon as possible," he replied; "but," he added, brokenly, "I want to take my wife and children. Oh, God, help me!" and the tor broke down in uncontrollable sobs. The Wife Breaks In.

"Mrs. Vanderwerker will be here interposed Mrs. Tupper, in a cold, cutting tone. "She will tell all about it. They generally go together."
"Not at all, Imogene. You ought not to talk that way." Here Mrs. Tupper broke out into broadside of denunciation and recrimina-tion, which nothing could stop, no denial turn aside, no assurance lessen, no reason whappy pair sitting on the porch together, with only the pale moonlight for a candle, and only the blue sky for a canopy, while the autumn leaves rustled mournfully through the yard, as the wind made them seury along before it.

It is unquestionably safe to say that the majority of the people lay great stress upon Mrs. Tupper's physiciol condition. She is a lady of unusually intellectual tastes, and her periodical and multiplied confinements are agreed as the origin, or at least the prologue, of all this trouble. The people here unquestionably believe that Mrs. Tupper has exaggerated the facta; that, though Mrs. Vanderwerker may have followed the doctor, and the doctor may have yielded more than he should, it is nevertheless a safe cast of local opinion to say that those who believe Mrs. Tupper to have exaggerated the affair outnumber those who bold the opposite.

The Prespect Poor.

The prespects tonight are very poor for a reconciliation. Whether they will improve by the events of the morrow is not known. The doctor's condition tonight is one to excite the kesnest sympathy, as contrasted with the doctors of his unreasonably his

GERMAN CATHOLICS. Archbishop Kartzer's Address at Buffalo

Yesterday. BUFFALO, N. Y., September 23 .- Before the German Catholic congress, in session here, Archbishop Kartzer, of Milwaukee, speaking in German, said:

"You have heard several letters of archbishops and bishops regretting that they were not able to attend. I myself was engaged, but not able to attehd. I myself was engaged, but I left my business behind and came to this convention to publicly disavow what has been said against these conventions. The first thing I wish to protest—by my presence—against is, that we are not loyal citizens. We are as loyal as those speaking only the language of this country. We have shown it in years gone by, and we are ready at any time to show it again. Secondly, the press principally speeds the news, and many have believed it, that we came together to create dissension. Brethren, before I am German, before I am American, I am Catholic and if anything like dissension were intended here, I would not have come. We come to encourage Christian life, to show our allegiance to our holy father, and because you are bound to him, the center of unity, by bishops, therefore, are you also loyal to them.'

The excitement and enthusiasm succeeding the archbishop's words was marvelous.

But Closed Steady-The Day on the Cotton

New York, September 23.—The Sun's cotton article says: Futures were very unsettled all day, closing steady at four to six points' and day, closing steady at four to six points advance from yesterday's closing prices. The market today was again a bundle of contradictions. Liverpool reported an advance equal to eighteen points in our money, and receipts at ports pointedly greatly reduced figures, owing to the receipt of only a little more than 2,000 bales at New Orleans. Yet an early advance with the receipt to tare an early advance with the use of eight to ten points was almost wholly lost in the course of points was almost wholly lost in the course of an hour.

Then the market became like an ill-ballasted ship at sea. It plunged and careened in a most extraordinary fashion. After the last call January contracts showed fresh strength, and there was a sale at 8.85 cents, but this was followed by a drop to 8.81. Operators began to reverse the query of yesterday, and asked: "If such a Liverpool report and such small receipts will not put up cotton, what will?" Yet there was a strong undertone to the market. A Liverpool cable said: "We are inclined to hold cotton at current prices until we see the outcome of your early frosts." Weather at the south continues to be all that could be desired. Interior receipts were large, except at Augusta. Spot cotton were large, except at Augusta. Spot cotton was firm, but quiet.

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 23.—[Special.]—
A local syndicate has dropped—or rather expects to drop—into the possession of a purse of $1,000 offered by Messrs. Green & Gaynor to the person locating a certain kind of rock within fitty miles of Savannah. Messrs. Green & Gaynor look forward to some large contracts when the real work of improving the Savannah harbor begins. They will then require enormous quantities of this rock, which, in the past, they have been compelled to bring down from the north on schooners, at great expense. While they have little hopes of finding any, they offered a reward of $1,000 for its discovery near Savannah. The parties discovery near Savannah. The parties o claim it have found exactly the kind of who claim is wanted in large quantities out in Bryan county, and have obtained an option on the ground. They expect to make many thousands of dollars out of their find.

SPEECHES ON THE TARIFF YESTERDAY But by Gentlemen on Both Sides

the Question. NOT MUCH SAID ABOUT FREE SILVER.

But Their Argument Confined Wholly to the Tariff-Ovations to Both Speakers by the People.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, September 23.—A grand ovation was tendered Roger Q. Mills, at the clty hall tonight, which was filled to overflowing. A large number of republicans wer resent, among whom was the ex-speaker of the house of representatives, General J. Warren Keifer. A large banner was strung across the balcony with the words: "For Speaker of the House of Representatives, Hon.

oger Q. Mills." Hon. John L. Zimmerman presided over the meeting. Mr. Mills was so hoarse from his countinued speaking in the last few days that for a short time it was almost impossible to hear him. Mr. Mills almost entirely ignored the free silver question. He, however, gave free silver a blow by saying there is but one issue before the people, "The que-tion of taxation." He said, Last year's importations amounted to $480,000,000. duty on the same amounted to $220,000,000, making the tatal cost to Americans of $700,-000,000, thus showing that the consumer paid 000,000, thus showing that the consumer paid this tax.

He asserted that a high tariff made low wages, and a low tariff vice versa; that the tariff throttled agriculture, and was sowing the seeds of monarchy. He said the poverty of the republicans' argument was shown in their efforts to lower the price of sugar by taking the tax off and lowering the price of tin by putting it op.

putting it on.
"I look for a millennium," said he, "when the ports of the United States are thrown open and her flags are seen in every foreign port. Then agriculture will be quickened by reason of an increased demand."

AT THE COAL PALACE.

McKinley Addresses a Large Crowd at Ottumwa, Iowa.

OTTUMWA, Ia., September 23.—There was the greatest outpouring of republicans to greet McKinley at the coal palace today since Grant's last visit to the state. Twenty-five crowded excursion trains from all parts of Iowa arrived, supplemented by regular trains, and all crowded to the utmost. Fully 50,000 people were on the streets of the city during the monster procession, and the entire marching force, numbering thousands, carried cornstall canes, and wore American tin plate Ohio canes, and wore American tin plate Ohio badges.

McKinley was everywhere wildly cheered, and the coal palace, capable of seating 8,000 people, was not large enough to accommodate the crowd. This morning Major McKinley and Colleagnes Gear, Henderson, Lacey and Senator Allison visited the coal palace and tendered a reception to the Missouri delegation.

The galleries were so crowded that police had to be stationed to keep out further visitiors. After the local palace speech, McKinley made a short address in a stand near the park. In the evening a reception campfire was held in the palace. Speeches were made by Alliany Handerson, Gear, Lacy and McKinley. lison, Henderson, Gear, Lacy and McKinley. Company for the past week, but the wild-eyed report could not be authenticated.

Colonel M. H. Clift, O'Brien's counsel, said there was not a bit of truth in the report; that if he was in the custody of the company there would be no occasion for concealment. Chief of Police Kilgore was asked what steps he had taken in the matter, and he replied:

or Police Kilgore was asked what steps he had taken in the matter, and he replied:

"None. No demand has ever been made upon us, nor has any reward been offered. Outside of several telegrams sent by the supreme officers of the knights to suspected points to intercept O'Brien, no steps of a legal character have been taken so far as the local force is concerned."

Negotiations are now in progress for a set-tlement of the affair, and it is said that Mrs. O'Brien is willing to give her inheritance, of which she will soon fall into possession, to the liquidation of the major's shortage.

O'Brien's Proposition.

A novel turn occurred today in the defalcation of M. J. O'Brien. His shortage is within a few dollars of $76,000. Supreme President Coleman, who is here adjusting the order of business, was handed a letter from O'Brien. Over his own signature the defaulting treasurer makes a proposition of settlement. He offers $5,000 cash and semi-annual payments of $5,000.

He stipulates that the money shall be applied in payment on a deed of trust made to his sureties to the amount of his shortage. President Coleman is reticent over the company to the state of the state munication, which he has referred to his at torneys. Friends of the president say he dis approves of O'Brien's proposed settlement.

"The miners have turned the matter over to the farmers at Coal Creek, and will have nothing more to do with it," said Mr. Edwards, "but there is a smouldering fire burning elsewhere that is liable to break out at any time, and the convicts will be liberated. Clothing has been procured for the purpose. The stripes will be removed and other garments put on them and they will be told to go and sin no more. This is the programme in brief—one that will be carried out at all hazards, governor or no governor, militia or no militia. The actors on the stage will be the farmers there and the miners from other places, who are armed and equipped for any emergency. It is hard to tell which one of the parties is the more indignant."

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT

By Which an Alabamian Lost His Life. A File Driven Into His Thigh.

A File Driven Into His Thigh,
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., September 23.—(Special.)—A report from Gallant, of Marshall county, tells of a peculiar and fatal accident. John Snow had just finished filing the saw in his sawmill and put the file down, no one knows where nor probably ever will. He told the engineer to start up, and the file, which had by some means become entangled in the machinery, was driven with such force into Mr. Snow's groin as to sever an artery. Seeing what had happened, he signaled the engineer to shut off the steam, but before any one could reach him he had sunk down. He was carried to Mr. Ferguson's house, where he died in two hours. He leaves a wife and several children.

GASHED HIS THROAT

Ex-Governor Morehouse, of Missouri, Takes His Own Life

BY CUTTING HIS THROAT WITH A KNIFE He Became Overheated Several Days Ago, and Since Then HAS BEEN IN A NERVOUS CONDITION.

Watchers Were Placed Over Him, but Notwithstanding Their Vigilance, He Succeeded in Taking His Life.

MARTSVILLE, Mo., September 23.—Ex-Governor Albert P. Morehouse committed suicide at his residence at 9 o'clock this morning. Several weeks ago the governor was violently overheated while driving cattle and has been in a very nervous condition since. At times he has been delirious and very much depressed. He was taken out for a drive by a friend last night, but became so much excited that he was brought home and a physician was called. He became quieter during the night and this morning was sleeping quietly. Two watchers were in another room. They heard a gurgling noise in the governor's room and on entering found him lying on the floor, blood spurting from his throat. He had cut a gash in the left side of his throat about four inches long. The weapon was a common pocket knife which he still held in his right hand. He had folded up his coat and vest and placed them under his head. Sketch of the Deceased.

Governor Morehouse was born in Delaware ounty. Ohio, July 10th, 1835, and came to Missouri in 1856. He was a lawyer and has always taken a prominent part in Missouri politics. He was elected lieutenant governor n the democratic ticket in 1884 with Marmaduke as governor, and upon the death of the latter, succeeded him and took the oath as governor of the state in 1887. His wife and two children are in St. Joseph and have not yet been informed of his death.

THOSE MORRISONS AGAIN.

They Assault a Young Lady, But Make Their Escape.

Birmingham, Ala., September 23.—[Special.]—John and Jim Morrison, well known as eaders among the Miller gang of Bibb county desperadoes, have broken out in a new role by adding rape to their other crimes. Last night adding rape to their other crimes. Last night, accompanied by two other members of the gang, they went to the house of a Mr. Abston and assaulted his daughter, a young lady, who happened to be at home by herself. Some one passed in time to hear her outcries, and the gang was frightened off, but not before they had seriously injured the young woman by rough handling. Since the organization of vigilance committees all over the county, it was supposed the Morrisons had left. The at-tempt to capture them is being now renewed with redoubled vigilance.

THREE BOYS KILLED

While Stealing a Bide on a Lumber

Train.
CHICAGO, September 23.—Three boys, ranging in age between eleven and fifteen years, were killed on a train at the stock yards this morning. Their names were Peter Foster, Ernest Garlos, and the third was only known as George. Foster came from Valparaiso, Ind., and Garlos had papers on his person to indicate that he formerly lived in Denver. They were stealing a ride on a freight car loaded with lumber, and the lumber fell upon them, crushing them.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., September 23.—[Special.]—Tony Goines, a rather handsome young man, who is employed by T. A. Snow, was arrested this morning by Lieutenant Fred Hill on a very serious charge. Goines is charged with stealing a diamond valued at $75 from a well-known society belie on Vine street.

THEY PREDICT A CRASH.

LONDON, September 23.—A representative of the Associated Press has had interviews with Rothschild, Spayers, Lazard Brothers and other bankers, and they all agree in their and other bankers, and they all agree in their statements that further large shipments of gold are going to America. The Rothschilds dispatched an additional £100,000 today. The chief clerk of the house said that it was uncertain whether France would make the bulk of the gold exports, or whether the burden would fall on England. But, considering the feet of the considering the feet of the statement of the state considering the fact that France a worse harvest than England, it would seem that she should send the bulk of gold. The Bank of France may, however, as on former occasions, obstruct exports by raising the premium on full weight coin. What Mr. Giffen Said. In an interview with Robert Giffen, head of the commercial department and comptroller of coin returns of the British board of trade, he was asked what truth there was in the calculation that England and the continent would be forced to part with gold amounting to £60,000,000 to pay for the imports of American grain.

to £50,000,000 to pay for the imports of American grain.

Mr. Giffen ridiculed the estimate and said before £10,0000,000 in bullion was sent to America the Bank of England and Bank of France would both raise their rates of discount and check the drain. According to Giffen, not bullion but securities and exports would go to America to pay for grain. Undoubtedly, he said, there would be a heavy drain of gold for several months to come, but payments for grain were not the sole cause of such a drain. An important factor in the financial situation was the silver question. Stable American houses, he declared, were making preparations to face a silver crisis, which is now inevitable, by making gold purchases in Europe. When asked if such a crists was inevitable, Mr. Giffen said:

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 23.—[Special.]— It was rumored that the father of De Laughter, the express car robber, was in the city for the Savannar, Ga., September 23.—[Special.]—It was rumored that the father of DeLaughter, the express car robber, was in the city for the purpose of procuring his son's release from jail on bail. Acting Solicitor General Oaborne says that so far as he knows no effort is being made to secure bail for any of the prisoners. The three robbers have not employed counsel, and it is understood that they do not intend to do so for two reasons. In the first place it is doubtful whether they could secure enough money to remunerate a lawyer for his services in defending them. Even should this difficulty be overcome, legal talent would avail them nothing should they adhere to their expressed determination to plead guilty.

Since the recent robbery the express car has had in addition to the regular men employed, an armed guard whose duty it is to stand ready to protect the goods and messenger.

Neck Was Broken. PLAINFIELD, N. J., September 23.—Peter C. Vanarsdale, of Plainfield, was out riding with his wife last night, near Somerville, when his team of ponies began to run away. He told his wife to jump, which she did. In a moment he regained control of the horses and drove back to where his wife was lying in the road. Lifting her up he was horrified to find that she was dying, and in five minutes she was dead. As she struck the earth, Mrs. Vanars-dale's head crashed into a stone, breaking her neck. Protecting the Oyster Beds. Protecting the Oyster Beds.

Baltimore, September 23.—[Special.]—In order to save the oyster beds from destruction the state of Maryland has provided a culling law. It works hard on the tug men by requiring them to dump exactly in the place taken the undersized shells, as well as young oysters. This, of course, they fail to do, although there is now a feeling that heroic measures even stronger than these have to be taken to preserve the industry to the state.

A curious incident occurred today when one of the lower county state's attorneys requested the commander of the oyster navy, General John B. Seth, to allow the law to be construed liberally for his people. The head of the great navy merely replied that the law was there, and he meant to have it enforced. The state has a navy for that purpose.

LAGRANGE, Ga., September 23 .- [Special.] Troup county is much excited today over the murder of Mrs. Prather, an aged white lady who lives ten miles from LaGrange. Her husband, Mr Ben Prather, is a successful farmer and has plenty around him. He has no confidence in banks, and it is thought by many that he has money hidden away in his house.

Had Been Choked to Death. He left home this morning with a load of cotton, leaving his feeble wife entirely alone. He had sold his cotton and was settling up his accounts when a neighbor came in town bearing the startling news that his wife had been choked to death.

Coroner Caudle and Sheriff Henderson went immediately to the scene of the murder, accompanied by a number of indignant citizens.

A Negro Suspected. Suspicion rests on a negro who was to have pulled fodder for Mr. Prather today and knew that he was not at home. Nothing further can be gathered tonight as the parties have not yet returned.

TWO MURDERS REPORTED.

One Near Wilhoochee and the Other at Jocelyn. WAYCROSS, Ga., September 23.—[Special.]— Intelligence has just reached here of the commission of two murders—one near Willi-coochee, Ga., on the Brunswick and Western railroad, and the other at Josselyn, Ga., on the Savannah, Florida and Western railroad.

The first grew out of a dispute between James Andrews and Henry Brown, colored at a turpentine still six miles from Willicoochee. Brown was sitting on a dry goods box in front of Covington & Harrison's store. Andrews walked up and began cursing Brown remonstrated and tried to pacify Andrews, whereupon the latter drew his pistol and fired, the ball passing through Brown's body. Brown expired shortly after-wards. Andrews escaped, but was captured, and is probably in jail at Willicoochee.

The other murder grew out of an alleged intimacy between the wife of Scipio Bowden and one Gary, the "blind tiger" proprietor, who was shot and killed several weeks ago

Bowden was extremely jealous of his wife They got into a dispute, and Bowden pulled his pistol and shot her twice. She ran into the yard screaming. Bowden followed and that her another time, killing her instantly. He then ran into the woods and made his es cape. A posse of men went in pursuit of him but were unsuccessful, as Bowden had too

The cotton business of the town will be better than ever. That is, the territory for the town seems to be much larger than heretofore. Extensive preparations have been made to house cotton, and with our superior accommodations for handling and our cheap rate of freight, we expect to do a lively cotton business, and consequently a lively trade will come here.

The farmers seem to be in good cheer. The cotton crop is a little short and the price will be rather low, but the farmers in general have been very careful about going in debt, and hence they are not so much in debt and will be in better fix than ever.

On Tuesday evening, the 8th of September, Miss Charlie Hitt, one of the most attractive young ladies of Americus, was married to Mr. Edward B. Everett, a worthy young business man of this city.

There was a bit of romance attached to this union of hearts, and proves the truth of the adage "all's well that ends well." Miss Hitt was making her arrangements to return to boarding school, which her parents were very anxious she should do, quite young. The young lady meant to keep faith with her fond parents and return to keep faith with her fond parents and return to school for another term, and at the same time prove true to her lover. So on Tuesday evening the young couple repaired to the home of a friend and were secretly married in the presence of one sworn witness and the man of God, who religiously performed the ceremony.

Miss Hitt returned to her father's house, Mr. Everett to his home. Nothing was to be made public until the young lady's school days were ended, and so it might have been, but for a note written by the young lady to the friend who had rendered valuable assistance on this happy, but secret occasion. The note by chance fell into the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Hitt and told a tale of woe to the loving father and mother. There was weeping and feeling confessions, but the school romance all went to pieces in the twinkling of an eye.

A FIGHT FOR LIFE.

Shall We Drive Slow Poison from Our Breakfast Table?

Alum and Ammonia in Our Bread.

A nuisance that troubled England fifty years ago is now rapidly spreading in this country, that is putting alum in the bread we eat. This question is causing a great deal of discussion at the present moment, as it is revealed that alum is being used as a substitute for cream of tartar in baking powders. A story is told that a very large percentage of the baking powders sold on the market contain either alum or ammonia, and many of them contain both these pernicious drugs. Much timely alarm is felt at the wholesale use of alum in bread, biscuit and pastry. To young children, growing girls, persons of weakly frame, alum bread eaten morning, noon and evening is the most harmful. It is the small quantities taken at every meal that Alum and Ammonia in Our Bread. noon and evening is the most harmful. It is the small quantities taken at every meal that do the mischief. Alum is cheap, costing but two or three cents a pound, while cream of tartar costs 30c, and the high price of cream of tartar has led cheap baking powder to be made of alum. If the reader wants to know some-thing of the corrosive qualities of alum, let him touch a piece to his tongue, then reflect how it acts on the tender, delicate coats of the how it acts on the

Acquittal of George W. Pierce Charged with Murder

COMMITTED TWENTY-SIX YEARS AGO.

The Courtroom Crowded - Argument Hon. Steve Clay for the Defense and CANTON, Ga., September 23 .- [Special.]-The most interesting, exciting and notable case before the present term of Cherokee superior court was tried Tuesday, it being that of the State vs. George W. Pierce, charged with the murder of Charles Edwards in September, 1865. The case was one not merely of local interest, but had gained well nigh national notoriety by reason of the alleged crime hav-ing occurred during the exciting times about close of the late war between the states, and the arrest not having been made until a short while ago, although Captain Pierce had been living for many years in middle Texas, openly and above board—an honored, respected and influential citizen. In consequence the courtroom was literally packed during the trial, many ladies being attentive listeners.

trial, many ladies ceing attentive instenes.
Captain Pierce was represented by Hon. A.
S. Clay, of Marietta, and Captain H. W. Newman and Colonel Thomas Hutcherson, of this place, while the state was ably represented by Solicitor General Brown and Colonel John D. Attaway, both of this place. Fifty-six jurors were sworn before the following were selected

GEORGE W. PIERCE. to-wit: W. M. Bishop, P. I. Edwards, J. M. Paden, T. W. Lewis, J. B. Chastain, H. Bur-dett, J. P. Spears, A. K. Scott, W. J. Webb, James Haines, James M. White and A. G.

Collins.

The bill of indictment under which the arrest and trial was made, was found at the March term, 1866. of Cherokee superior court, when Hon. George D. Rice, now dead, was judge and Colonel Charles D. Phillips solicitor-general of this circuit. Only five of the grand jurors who found the bill are now living, to-wit: W. T. Popham, William Wayne, A. C. Avery, Harrison Black and Joseph Donaldson. The evidence introduced in the trial was somewhat of a surprise to many, intrial was somewhat of a surprise to many, in-asmuch as the state failed to make out as clear a case for the prosecution as had been previously reported would be easily done. No positive evidence was deduced and the prosecution only had circumstantial evidence to rely upon.

Colonel Clay's Argument. Colonel Clay's Argument.

Colonel Clay, for the defense, handled the witnesses very nicely and adroitly, and it was really with difficulty that the state managed to get sufficient evidence to make out its case at all, notwithstanding the shrewdness and ability of Solicitor General Brown. The defense presented no evidence whatever, save the statement of Captain Pierce. The defendant's first wife, now Mrs. Jones, from whom he was divorced some years ago, had come from Texas to testify in Pierce's behalf, but the defense found it unnecessary to use her, and they went to the jury relying behalf, but the defense found it unnecessary to use her, and they went to the jury relying upon Pierce's statement and the states witnesses. The state only put up four witnesses—Winburn Moss, who saw part of the difficulty, William C. Brooke, who was present when Edwards died, S. R. Dickson, who was well acquainted with both parties, and Sheriff Kitchen, who parrested Pierce [this spring—and upon their testimony rested. From the facts gathered from these witnesses and the defendent, it seems that about 4 o'clock one very warm September evening in 1865. Charles Edwards, an old man about sixty-five Edwards, an old man about sixty-five years of of age, went by Pierce's house, stop-ped and called for Pierce. He went out to the gate and after talking a few minutes got into a difficulty with Edwards, when both fell into ditch that was very rocky. when Edwards got up a wound above his right ear was bleeding, and he went into Pierce's house where he washed his face and head and then walked on home, some three-fourths of a mile distant. That night about 9 o'clock Edwards died from what was supposed to the better of the wound above the sed to be the effect of the wound above the r, there being no other visible or known puble. Pierce left Cherokee immediately, and some years afterwards it was learned was in Texas, but it was not until May June last that the matter was brought Sheriff Kitchen's attention, when he went to Texas and arrested him. Lawyers there in-terfered and the sheriff and J. W. Flemming, who went to identify Pierce if necessary, re-turned without him, although Pierce offered turned without him, although Pierce offered no very great objection.

About three weeks later the sheriff received notice that Pierce had decided to delay the matter no longer and would be in Memphis, Tenn., on a certain day. The sheriff went and met him, since when Pierce has been in jail here, not wishing to make bond. While these are about the facts, some light may be thrown upon them by briefly recounting some of the testimony and circumstances, viz: The difficulty, it appears, grew out of a trade Captian Pierce made while at home from the war on a sick furlough with Charles Edwards, who came over to his house and bought a mule, giving in payment therefor a Edwards, who came over to his house and bought a mule, giving in payment therefor a cow and calf and his note for $7 or $8 due in wheat when threshed. Subsequently the mule died and Edwards refused to pay the note, demanding that the trade be recanted. It seems that Edwards went to Pierce's on an occasion previous to the difficulty and demanded the return of the cow and calf, and meeting with a refusal from Captain Pierce, he threatened to bring 500 yankees on him within twenty-four hours. Pierce still refused, and, fearing Edwards's threat, he and wife went away from home for a few days, and he soon afterwards returned yankees on him within tenty-lour hours, Pierce still refused, and, fearing Edwards's threat, he and wife went away from home for a few days, and he soon afterwards returned to the army, where he remained until the surrender, when he came back home. He shortly afterwards began making arrangements to leave Cherokee with others to go west. At the time of the difficulty Edwards went to Pierce's house and called him out to the gate, where he again demanded the cow and calf, and Pierce demanded of him payment of the note. Edwards refused to pay the note, and Pierce refused to return the cow and calf, whereupon Edwards again threatened to go to Cartersville and get 500 yankees by the next evening if Pierce did not give him the cow and calf. Pierce replied that no one but a rascal would make such threats and do such a thing. Edwards then picked up two rocks and threw one at Pierce, striking him upon the left arm, and made at him with the other. Pierce caught him about the waist and arms, and in a tussle both stumbled and fell over a little embankment into a rocky place in a ditch beside the road. When Pierce got up he saw Edwards trying to pick up another rock, when he said to him: "Let's quit."

About that time fairs. Huff and Winburn Moss came up and asked Edwards if he washurt, and he said no, except a little from falling on the rocks. Just above the right ear there was a cut place that was bleeding, and with Mrs. Huff, Moss and Pierce he went into Pierce's house, and had his head washed. No other hurts or bruises were discovered about him then. After washipg he walked on home, and that that Pierce struck Edwards at all or had a weapon of any kind. Edwards was about sixty-five years of age, but quite stout and active for one of his age, although very much fatigued at the time of the difficulty from driving some sheep. While it was not put in evidence, yet the counsel intimated that Edwards, if not a federal, was a sympathizer with the union forces. He was too old to go to the war. On the other hand, Pierce was said to be a brave, gallant confederate soldier, and went out at the beginning of the war as a member of the Brown Rifies, Second Georgia regiment, but at the close of the war was a cavalryman with the rank of captain.

The scars he now carries and the testimony of his comrades during the four years of that bloody conflict between the states is evidence sufficient that he made a valiant, brave, gallant and fearless soldier, fighting for and defending upon the battlefields and in the trenches for the cause of the confederacy. At the time of the difficulty he was suffering with wounds received in battle in the hip, body and limbs so as to disable him for the time from manual labor.

The defense argued to the jury quite eloquently and forcibly the chivalric courage and devotion of Captain Pierce to the confederate cause, and it proved quite a point in their favor, too. Captain H. W. Newman opened the argument in a thirty minutes' speech mainly on that line, and it was plainly visible that he made quite a favorable impression upon all in the courtroom and won renewed sympathy and interest for his client. He was followed by Colonel John D. Attaway for the state, who made a very pretty speech and presented the state's theory in such a manner as to throw considerable light upon the circumstantial evidence relied on for conviction.

Solicitor Brown to the Jury.

Then followed Solicitor General Brown in Solicitor Brown to the Jury.

Then followed Solicitor General one of the best speeches and most forcible aruments he ever delivered before a Cheroke guments he ever delivered before a Cherokee jury, so closely linking the evidence together as to make out a pretty fair case, notwithstanding the very little sworn testimony and facts he had to build upon. His devotion to the state's interest was highly complimented upon all sides, and this was accounted one of the best speeches he ever delivered here or elsewhere. As the defense offered no testimony, save that of the defendant's statement, this gave them the conclusion, and, in a speech of more than an hour, Hon. A. S. Clay held the close attention of the jurors and every one else in the elsewhere. As the defense offered no testimony, save that of the defendant's statement, this gave them the conclusion, and, in a speech of more than an hour, Hon. A. S. Clay held the close attention of the jurors and every one else in the courtroom as he eloquently and ably presented the theory of the defense. He took up the evidence and with his shrewdness, experience and ability as a criminal lawyer, showed how impossible it was that Pierce killed Edwards, or, admitting that he did, how probable it was that it may have been in self-defense. Both theories were made quite plausible. His speech was complimented as the finest and best he ever delivered in any case in Cherokee superior court, although he has been practicing here for many years, and it really had more to do with clearing the minds of the jurors or all doubt and gaining a verdict of acquittal for Captain Pierce than any other speech or thing done during the trial. He probably delivered no abler or better speech in any of the seventeen murder cases he has been interested in heretofore.

A Verdict of Not Guilty.

A Verdict of Not Guilty After the very able, full and clear charge of Judge Gober, the jury retired to their room with the fate of Captain Pierce in their hands. with the fate of Captain Pierce in their hands. After about two hours discussion of the case in all its bearings, a vote was taken and every man found to favor a verdict of acquittal. Accordingly the verdict of "not guilty" was signed and Judge Gober notified of the agreement. About 9 o'clock Judge Gober took his seat, received the verdict and discharged the jury. When the verdict was read a ripple of applause was heard whereupon Judge Gober ordered the sheriff to arrest any who made any sort of demonstration. After a pause of a few minutes court adjourned until morning and then the one hundred or more people who were in waiting for the jury's until morning and then the one hundred or more people who were in waiting for the jury's verdict crowded about Captain Pierce and for some time he was kept busy shaking hands with his friends and receiving their congratulations. From the beginning of this trouble, when Pierce was first arrested and brought to jail, the sympathies of the people here and elsewhere have been for Pierce, and the verdict of acquittal therefore meets the approval of all—not one, so far as your correspondent knows, objecting or disapproving of it. During the trial his lawyers were very greatly assisted by the many war friends and relatives of the defendant. Captain Pierce will remain a few days in Cherokee, and then return to his wife and children in Texas, a happy, free-hearted man, in love, as he puts it, with Cherokee and her people.

Because of the alleged murder having been committed in 1865, twenty-six years ago, at a time when law and order was not regarded so highly as now, and the good character and high standing in Texas of Captain Pierce, this case has won considerable noto-riety, and its termination will be looked for-ward to with much interest by the people all over Georgia as well as Texas and elsewhere, and doubtless the jury's conclusion of the mat-ter received with joy and satisfaction.

Thornton Looks Pretty Sour-Miss Jewell Thinks Reporters Are Mean Things to Publish What They Did.

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 23.—[Special.] Among those who sailed for New York on the City of Birmingham this morning were Mr. Samuel W. Thornton and Miss Eva Jewell, of Brooklyn, the parties who mysteriously disap-peared four weeks ago and so suddenly turned up in Jacksonville on Monday with a, "fishy" story about having been carried out to sea while bathing at Coney Island; taken aboard a Spanish vessel, transferred to another, and then set ashore on the Florida beach twenty miles from Jacksonville, to which place they walked.

Mr. Thornton and Miss Jewell came up to Savannah yesterday afternoon. This morning they were not inclined to talk at all. They were not pleased at the idea of having carefully concected story shattered all to pieces, and with the necessity they are now under of fixing up another explanation that will be of a more probable nature to account for their movements during the past month.

Miss Jewell Still Sprightly.

Thornton, in particular, felt very ugly. He was probably thinking of the pleas view awaiting him when he reaches Brooklyn Jewell was worried-looking, too, but she does not fear for the future quite as much as her companion, and even summoned up enough courage to try to appear sprightly.

courage to try to appear sprightly.

"Our story as told in Jacksonville is true." they both persisted just before the steamer sailed; "we can't help it if some people are such liars that they think nobody else tells the truth, either. We did go in bathing; we were carried out to sea, were picked up by a Spanish vessel and it is not our fault that our education was so neglected that we cannot talk Spanish and remember Spanish names. No, we are not afraid to go home. If we were, we would not be on this steamship with tickets for New York. We expect a loving greeting, of course. If you had dear ones restored to you, as it were from the grave, would you not receive them with manifestations of the deepest love? Our people know us too well to believe these stories that have been set afloat."

Those Horrid Report

"That horrid reporter down in Jacksonville was mad," said Miss Jewett. "That's the reason he made up that story about our being a runaway couple. He was mad because The Times-Union, which his paper is trying to fight, got our story first. It was a case of spiteful jealousy with him. I never saw the nean thing before, and it's a shame to say such things about us."

While both persist that their story is true there seems to be no one willing to believe it. It is generally believed here that the couple eloped, and running out of cash fixed up the story in order to account for their disappearance, and smooth over things with Miss Jewett's sister, who is Thornton's wife.

THE LATE JOHN H. B. LATROBE. Some of the Memorable Incidents of an

Eventful Life. BALTIMORE, September 22.—[Special.]— There are a few incidents in the memorable life of the late John H. B. Latrobe, who died on Friday morning of last week, that are worth while recording. He was a link with the early part of the century, having been fa-miliar with such characters as Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, the famous Marylander, signer of the declaration of independence. Raised as an engineer at West Point, the death of his father caused him ito give up his course just when about to graduate with high honors. Subsequently he became a lawyer, and a famous one too, as far as the securing of patent was concerned, but either as soldier, artist poet, author, engineer, inventor, and philan

He it was as counsel of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, assisted in the running of the Ohio railroad, assisted in the running of the first railroad engine in America from Baltimore to Ellicott's Mills. He aided Morse in developing his telegraph and secured the assistance of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in getting him a trial. Idberis was founded by him and its constitution written entire. He patented the world-renowned Latrobe or Baltimore heater used in parlors. He devised, it is said, the motto Jackson and Liberty in the democratic ticket, etc., etc. Mr. Latrobe gained a great lawsuit for the Winans against the Russian government, for which they had built several railroads. A DIVIDEND TO BE PAID,

Which Creates Surprise Among the People

at Large. BALTIMORE, September 22 .- [Special.]-The surprise in business circles is the report that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, after many years, is to pay a dividend. For more than a decade the road, under the Garretts, had the appear ance of prosperity, and despite disastrous rail-road wars and speculations in parlor cars, an express and a telegraph line seems to be earnexpress and a telegraph line seems to be earning its way. It paid regularly some annual dividends of 5 per cent, and the stock accordingly stood over 200. Then the crash came and it required the greatest possible struggle to keep the road from actual bankruptcy. That Napoleon of finance, Henry Ives, had a syndicate ready to make a deal, but by a sacrifice of some men, Spencer, and later Mayer, took charge of the affairs. For several years the reorganized company, freed of its expensive fads, and ably managed, has been making actual, not illusory, earnings; but still the stock remained below 80. With the announcement of a prospective scrip dividend, the stock ent of a prospective scrip dividend, the stock is risen above par, and may go still higher.

A Freak in Potatoes. CARNESVILLE, Ga., September 21.—[Special.]—We have just learned where iron back bands grow. Mr. Bryan, who lives near Plainview, about three miles west of town, brought here yesterday a sweet potato five inches long and nine inches in circumference, and has grown through the hole in an iron back band hook. It is quite a curiosity.

GRAVESEND RACE TRACK, September 23.—For the first time in many moons the talent had a regular field day with the bookmakers today. The weather was a trifle too warm to be comfortable, but the track was in first-class shape, and the 3,500 persons present were in a mood to bet heavily. They commenced by making Raceland an even-money favorite for the first race, and the old gelding won handily. Then Longford, Hoey and Dr. Hasbrouck, all favorites, were all successful. Civil Service, at 5 to 1, was a stumbing block in the fifth race, but when Taral landed Zeampost a favorite winner in the last event, the talent gave a mighty cheer and went home satisfied.

"A BARREL OF MONEY."

"A BARREL OF MONEY."

The opera house was well filled last night by an intelligent audience to witness what is called an "American comedy." Why "A Barrel of Money" should be called an American comedy, it is hard to say, as there is nothing distinctively American about it. It is simply the old, old story of virtue triumphant and vice defeated. This sort of thing is as lia-le to happen in Egypt as in America.

If some playwright would only construct a play illustrating the defeat of virtue and the triumph of vice, then there might be some reason to claim the representation as purely American and true to nature, as that is about the way things "pan out" in real life in America—as a rule. But, to the credit of humanity the world over, a play true to life would prove a dismal failure, as no one would enjoy witnessing the triumph of villainy. And therefore "A Barrel of Money" repeats the story which pleases the multitude—a victory for the good and the true.

The performance last night was fairly good all the way through, introducing novel mechanical effects and a number of specialty artists.

Miss Jessie West, the feminine luminary of the company, is a pocket edition of the old-time favorite, Lotta. She is possessed of chic and vim and of good personal appearance, but, alas, like so many of our traveling soubrettes, she is lacking in the main essential of a comedy star—voice. Her tones are almost childish. Time may remedy this imperfection.

While every member of the company did creditable work, Messra. George A. Booker and A. H. Balley are deserving of special mention as clever artists. Mr. Booker is a born comedian, and easily carried of the honors of the evening.

Matines this afternoon and last performance tonight.

The Agnes Seott Institute.

Decatur, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]—
Miss Lucy Magee, of Genesco, Ill., has accepted a position in the faculty of the Agnes Scott institute, and reached Decatur Friday last. Miss Magee, during her four years' connection with the Atlanta Female institute in the heighth of his prosperity established herself in the estimation of Atlanta parents as an accomplished aducator and a consecrated self in the estimation of Atianta parents as an accomplished educator and a consecrated Christian lady, and her many friends are delighted with her return to Georgia, and congratulate her on her connection with the Agnes Scott. The register of the institute now contains the names of 212 pupils. A number of young ladies from a distance have engaged rooms, and will enter between this date and January, the indications being that the limit of 250 pupils will be reached by the beginning of the second term.

Our Castle in the Air.

If the busy people in the streets below have turned their eyes upward during the past few weeks they have doubtless seen our castle in the air.

It is no idle vision seen in a dream; it is a substantial reality, a thing of beauty, an artistically wrought architectural fancy, recently added to THE CON-STITUTION'S stately walls, and equipped with gorgeous tripods for the editorial force-making the seventh story of the building.

We moved in yesterday at high noon. The first glance downward rattled us, and forgetting the business of the hour we were lost in contemplation of the scenery around us and downward. Far above the hurly-burly of the great city, its swarms of people look like little children. Buildings that once loomed up fair and tall now seem much reduced in size.

What are they doing down below? Up here in mid-air we can only guess. There may be tumult and strife, or peace and joy-we are too far away to see. Men may come and go in the streets, with their tales of sloth in the mart and schism in the temple, or their tidings may be of better things, but in our sun-crowned castle in cloudland, these matters only reach us through the pens and tongues of others.

And yet we can see much in the outer world to attract our gaze. A vast beehive of commerce and industry is spread out at our feet-a mighty maze, glittering with spires and turrets and shining domes. Then, far away historic Kennesaw and Stone mountain meet our eyes. Those hills circling the town, and echoing the ceaseless hum of triumphant industry, not so very long ago were the battle-grounds of contending hosts, and their redoubts defaced the landscape like so many blood-red scars, until Time's gentle touch swept them away to make room for our smiling suburbs. Over there McPherson fell, and yonder was fought the battle of Peachtree creek. Ezra church and Jonesboro had their battles this way, and in that direction. Right here in the center of this cluster of battlefields, see how Atlanta rises, majestic in her plentitude of brick and granite and marble!

It is good to be up here in this boundless solitude of space. We feel more neighborly towards the sun, and if we wink familiarly at a favorite star there is no harm done. It is a big thing to be able to lean out of the window and pull aside the skirt of a passing cloud when it obscures the view!

But we must curb these fancies. When one has a sanctum so near the home of the live thunder in the burning etherso far above the mists and fogs of the lower levels, and right in the track of the Storm King, a little excitement is natural and pardonable. The castle in the air can stand it. Firmly planted on massive walls, with the whole Piedmont escarpment for a base, it will stand many a strain and shock. It has no battlements, no drawbridge, no mailed sentinels to keep watch and ward like the castles of olden time. Its gates are wide open, the latch string hangs out, and our friends who desire to consult us, and read the answer in the stars, will always find us at home.

Good for Creditors and Debtors.

The New York Commercial Bulletin says that the coming year will be memorable for the magnitude of debts paid off in this country. Big crops and fair prices for most of our farm products, and an unusual foreign demand, will give our farmers more money than they ever handled before.

Most of the money realized from the sale of products will be utilized in paying off old debts. The mortgage-burdened agricultur-ists of the west will send millions of dollars to their eastern creditors. In the south, too, the farmers will be settling their debts. but their forced economy during the past year will make it easier for them to get rid of their burden. The Bulletin says:

For payment the farmer has this year extraor of their burden. The Bulletin says:

For payment the farmer has this year extraordinary resources. There is no reason to doubt that these will be used to the utmost in the liquidation of debt. The anxiety of borrowers and the distrust of lenders will both conspire in this case to produce a great clearance of debt. The value of wheat, corn, cats and cotton alone can hardly be less this year than about two billion dollars. While the farmers will not be able to sell all the corn they have produced, they will, nevertheless, get at least as much for the cattle, the hoga and other products which they have to sell. Certainly more than the amount above mentioned will go into the possession of the farmers within the next few months, and the greater part of it will be applied to the extinguishment of indebtedness. For the pressure of debt and of interest has been unusually severe during the past year of scanty crops, and anxiety regarding mortgages has been to many a great burden. On the other hand, in most of the states where mortgage indebtedness is large, the conduct of logislatures has recently been such as to alarm or anger creditors, and particularly those who have loaned money upon mortgage, and who are obliged to depend upon the enforcement of a mortgage in the courte as their only security for money leaned. Se great has been the injustice done by recent legislation in some states that companies having very large amounts at injustice done by recent legislation in some states that companies having very large amounts at injustice done by recent legislation in some states that companies having very large amounts at injustice done by recent legislation in some states that companies having very large amounts at injustice done by recent legislation in some states that companies having very large amounts at injustice done by recent legislation in some states the

The effect of this great clearance of in to seek new investments, and within the next few months we may expect to see great activity in securities and lively trading in real estate. This state of affairs will nat urally cause a revival of confidence, and that will mean flush times until the next period of depression comes along.

Lintless Cotton. The Charleston News and Courier is co firmed in its favorable opinion of the "lintless cotton" discovered and propagated by Mr. H. T. Ferguson, of Woodruff, S. C. After trying this cotton four years, Mr. Ferguson is satisfied that it has come to stay. The variety "comes true to seed," and many farmers are getting ready to engage in it cultivation. It is more prolific than any other variety, and has from two to three hundred bolls that come to maturity on each stalk. Each boll contains from thirty-six to sixty seeds, and the seeds contain more oil and plant food than ordinary cotton seeds. Mr. Ferguson says:

On ordinary lands, with moderate culture, 400 bushels of seed may always be counted on though much more can be made, if planted in hills 3x4 feet, three stalks to the hill. If the seed are sowed ut work; and just let me say that thi fact alone is enough to convince any reasonable man that lintless cotton is a God-send to the south. If, by any other means, the same fertilizing properties contained in 100 bushels of cotton seed can be so cheaply obtained, I have failed to

If the new variety continues to pan out in this fashion, it goes without saying that it will be worth millions to the south.

The Lumbermen's Heroic Remedy. In spite of all that has been written, the destruction of the pine forests of the south goes on at a fearful rate. The lumbermen themselves have realized it, but they seemed powerless to check the enormous waste of this priceless resource.

At last the lumbermen of North Carolina have waked up and taken action. It is radical action, of a kind that does not commend itself to the sympathy of the public but it seems to be the result of a state o affairs almost amounting to desperation The lumber trade is paralyzed by overpro duction, and this best of lumber is going for a price ridiculously low, considering its rea value and the prices commanded by the building material of other regions. Thi action of the lumbermen does not seem to be the right thing. What we should have is a timber-cut restricted by law, and free competition beyond that. It is necessary to restrict the cut in order to save the forests Beyond that, there is no need of a trust. But if the lawmakers won't take hold of the matter and regulate it, the capitalists interested will attempt to regulate it through some such combination as this.

The trouble is not confined to North Carolina. It is in Georgia, and in all the states of the great pine belt. It is time the egislatures of these states should wake up and do their duty in this matter before it is oo late to save the forests. If the legis latures do not regulate the cut, the lumbermen will undertake to do it in a manne that will make trouble. A reasonable limi tation of the cut would not greatly reduce the production, but it would equalize the cut upon the trees in all parts of the pine elt, and so save the forests.

Shylock on Top Again.

Last Tuesday a speculative flurry caused in imperative demand for money in New York, and 25 per cent was offered on call

This occurred at a time when the revival of business, our booming crops and the return of our gold from Europe made all the conditions favor the rapid increase of our general prosperity.

Only one cause can be assigned for tight money and enormous rates of interest at such a time, and that cause, it is unneces sary to say, is-speculation, with a vicious financial system under the absolute control of a few money kings. Within the past quarter of a century our people have many times been forced to recognize the fact that the currency of the country is not a medium of exchange for the legitimate needs of business. Under a financial system devised by a few Shylocks, who had the government by the throat at the crisis of the civil war, it i in the power of Wall street to command its own rates for money and force a panic even when we have all the substantial requisites of good times. Now, if Shylock can terrorize the entire ountry in one day, and scare capital back into the vaults where its timid guardians hoard it, it is plain that the commerce and industry of the republic cannot safely count on its aid. The enterprise, the toil, the development that promise the best results require the continuous use of capital for periods of years. They can derive no benefit from call loans, and when speculation enables Shylock to demand 25 per cent, or more—even 189 per cent, as was the case a year ago-they are bound to lag, and the boldest and most hopeful will hesitate before they engage in any venture requiring nonths and years for its accomplishment. Last fall, when the money kings locked up the currency, they said that what the country deeded was not more money, but more confidence. A year has rolled round, and we are going to sell to famine-stricken Europe more of our products than we ever old before, and the stimulating thrill of confidence has already made itself felt in every artery of commerce and in every fiber of our industrial body. We have the confidence, but Shylock has the money! Our toil, our increased production and our conomy all go for nothing so long as Wall street controls the finances and absorbs our money to be loaned back to us on call at 25 or a 100 per cent, as the case may be. The case with which these money kings control our business shows that there is not nough currency in the country to enable the people to exchange the products of their labor. Every now and then business and industry are blocked until money can be obtained from Wall street.

obtained from Wall street.

The people who insist that financial reform is the most vitally important issue of the hour are in the right. We must have a change of some sort, and almost anything will be better than the present oppressive system. We must have a currency and a banking system that can be utilized in the interest of the people, and not be held in the grip of a few men in one corner of the country for the convenience of spaculaters.

comes easy, goes easy, and must be had at any cost. We must have more money, because that means cheaper money—because it means money that will seek channels and investments that will build up the country.

In some shape, we must have a sweeping reform. Anything to emancipate the country from the tyranny of Wall street!

SPECIAL HEARING.

A Case in Which the Richmond and Danville Road Claims Some Land

IS SET FOR SATURDAY A WEEK

A Young Man Who Will Have the Music of Four Courts to Face-Other Mat-ters at the Custom House.

The Richmond and Danville has filed a bill against James D. Prather and Joseph M. Whitehead, of Habersham county. It involves a tract of land in that county of 366 acres. The value of this is $3,660, and the land contains fully $1,000 worth of timber, so the plaintiff alleges.

The road states that about August 1st

Whitehead and Prather took possession of this territory under some claim made by them and erected thereon a sawmill. The two men then began cutting down the timber and afterwards moving it away. The Richmond and Danville asks for an injunction.

Judge Newman has given an order restrain ing the men from cutting timber or interfer-ing with the land until October 3, 1891. The case will be heard then, being especially set previous to the beginning of the fall term.

Report of a Raid. Deputy Collectors J. A. Crawford, R. Dow, R. E. Hetherington and Witt returned yesterday from Cherokee county, where they vere on a raid. They seized the distillery of L. C. Reese, F. B. Dobbs and Alfred Davis, to Collector Johnson in Atlanta. The charge against these men was that they took a part the brandy made by them and, instead of put ting it in a warehouse provided by law, hid it out to evade payment of the tax. This violation is common, but it is seldom caught up

Deputy Marshals Caled Good and W. E Puckett arrested Dobbs and Davis. Reese was at home when the officers called, but he escaped. Judge Haight committed Dobbs to jail in default of bond. Davis gave bond, Marshals Newt McDonald and T. S. Cantrell were on a raid in Tallapoosa yesterday after-noon. They will probably return today.

Were Acquitted. Deputy Marshal W. M. Brice yesterday brought to Atlanta three men charged with having operated an illicit distillery. Their but the men. William O'Brien. Caleb O'Brien and John Gravitt, got away at the time. All three were found by Brice on their farms and brought before Judge Haight. The evidence of their guilt seemed insufficient and they were dismissed.

A Queer Case. C. C. Blalock, of White county, was yester day charged with illicit distilling. Some time ago he registered a brandy distillery with a wenty-four gallon still. He had a large amount of fruit on hand, his crop being larger than expected, and not being able to use it, h concluded to convert it all into good apple brandy. He did this with a sixty-seven gallo still, without reregistering. Deputy Collect stroyed it, and spilled twenty gallons of brandy and 1,600 gallons of pomace.

The case against Blalock has been set for October 26th, before the grand jury. The general sentiment of the residents of county is altogether in his favor, as he did all of his work openly, intending to reregister, when the deputy col collector came around.

Miles Crane, of Jasper, is under enough charges to worry him for some time to come. Several days ago he was on trial at Jasper, being one of four revenue prisoners. The men were all committed to Ful ton county jail by United States Commissioner Allread. After the trial Crane walked up to Walter Stepp, a resident of Dawson county, and a witness in the case, and accused him of being a revenue informer. The lie was given, whereupon Crane reciprocated the epithet in rather stronger terms. At the same time he drew a a knife and started at Stepp, who likewise had a knife ready, and a fight ensued. Crane Quite a Burden. knife and started at Stepp, who likewis ad a knife ready, and a fight ensued. Cran was slightly, and Stepp seriously, wounded. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Berner Bill. EDITOR CONSTITUTION-In view of the fact that the railroad bill, known as the "Berner bill," comes up for a hearing in the house of repre-tatives tomorrow, and recognizing the magnitude of the question to be considered and acted upon, I therefore take the liberty, as an humble citizen I therefore take the liberty, as an humble citizen of the state of Georgia, to express my views on the subject. I desire to premise what I say by stating that I have no interest whatever in the West Point Terminal or in any railroad company, nor do I own any stock or bonds in any railroad companies. My sole interest in the matter is the same as every citizen who feels a deep interest in the general prosperity and advancement of our me general prosperity and advancement of our commonwealth.

For more than twenty-six years have we been struggling to occupy a position, financial, commercial and industrial commensurate with what we knew we were entitled to occupy. Obstacles and hinderances have been cast in our pathway. We have gazed with envying eyes on the magic growth of the west. We find that great trunk lines have been built connecting the Facific slope with the eastern markets; that large and prosperous cities have been built along their lines, and what was but a few years ago the hunting grounds of the Indians and the homes of wild beasts are now immense cultivated fields of grain and the happy homes of prosperous farmers. The question naturally arises, what has caused this? The answer is that it is the result of building and conducting large systems of railroads. Great trunk lines have been inaugurated, giving to the country benefits and excitities that no one or two railroads could possure. systems of railroads. Great trunk lines have been inaugurated, giving to the country benefits and facilities that no one or two railroads could possibly have given. It required the union or consolination of many railroads to accomplish this re-nation of many rantom version to be considered by the house of representatives tomorrow, let us inquire what is the object and purpose of such a bill and what will be the effect should it pass. Some of the aivocates of the bill, I learn, say that the lease of the West Point Terminal or the Richmond and Danville railroad is unconstitutional, and that the constitution requires them to vote for the Berner bill. Now, what does the constitutionation the subject? In substance, it says ne Berner Dill. Now, what does the constitu-state on the subject? In substance, it says the legislature is prohibited from granting lers to any radirosad that will prevent com-lon, but nowhere does it say that when there ease or consolidation of radirosads, that it is uty of the legislature to forfeit or invalidate leases. On the other hand, we find in the sal containing the proceedings of the coninty of the lease. On the other ham, a leases. On the other ham, a leases. On the other ham, a lease, in the other ham, and the conditional convention, that an effort was there de, by one of Georgia's most illustrious men, a was a member of that body, to put in the artitution a clause, that, where there existed the preventing competition of railroads, that have preventing competition of railroads, that have preventing competition of railroads, that constitutionality of the Terminal lease is concerned, it is said that the company denies it, and, therefore, if questioned it would make an issue which only could be settled by the courts.

The next objection urged is that it prevents the building of other lines of railroads. How can such a thing be, if it be frue that the West Point Terminal controls by lease the other lines of railroad? The builders of a new railroad, would have but one computitor to contend with instead of several, and as a matter of fact, such is not the case. There will soon enter Atlanta a new road, known as the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad. A comparatively new road is the one running from Marietta to Knoxylle, Tenn., and others that I might mention. Some say that by reason of the lease unjust discrimination in rates exist. I will ask what is the object of the railroad commission if it is not for the purpose of regulating these rates; and certainly they are gentlemen who will honestly and faithfully discharge their duties. They can regulate the Terminal system, as easily as they can each separate road. But The Atlanta Evening Journal of the 22d instant says that the boycett of the Georgia Southern railroad greatly strengthens the Berner bill. How does it strengthen it? I have taken occasion to make some inquiries concerning this boycott, and find that the first movant was not the West Point Terminal, but was another system of roads, and that other systems of railroads, from the necessity of the case, were forced to follow suit. In the first place, I learn that the Georgia Southern railroad is in the hands of a receiver; that it is paying no dividends and may or rasy not be paying even running expenses. It is most probable that the largest creditors, whom I learn are northern men, are attempting to have some system, possibly the WestPoint Terminal, to buy the road with a view of securing the have been possibly the WestPoint Terminal, to buy the road with a view of securing the money due them on their mortgage bonds, and therefor compelled to submit the question to the courts, and pending the case in court, what would be the effect on the stocks and bonds of the roads? Naturally they would so greatly depreciate in value that no prudent man could afford to buy them. Who would be the sufferers? Not only our southern men, who by their ability and sagacity, have so successfully built up this great system, but the merchants in our towns, who have been enabled to borrow money from the banks on account of the marketable value of the stocks and bonds of these roads; the farmers, who by economy have placed theirsavings in stocks, and count with pleasure, the dividends received; little orphan children, whose guardians have placed their entire substance in the stocks of some of the roads in this Terminal system, and whose very living depends upon the dividends recieved, and lastly the widows of our state, who recognizing the certainty of obtaining their living out of these railroad stocks have placed their all in them. Then why bring about this distressing condition of affairs? What is to be gained by it? Certainly no good, but great troubles and distress.

Let us hope, therefore, that neither the Berner bill or any amendment or substitute will be accepted that bears the germs of litigation, because, whether it be the Berner bill or any other that necessitates litigation, the same results will follow. Let the railroad commissioners have full authority to regulate the roads.

Without intending any reflection on Mr. Berner, the promoter of this bill, whom I regard as an follow. Let the raine and the roads.

Without intending any reflection on Mr. Berner, the promoter of this bill, whom I regard as an honest, conscientious and able gentieman, I will conclude by saying there is one class of people, whom the bill, if passed, will greatly gratify, and they are people of other states who are jealous of our prosperity and desirous of seeing the annihilation of this railroad system. Very respectfully, CITIZEN.

Mr. Williams consented to withold the see until 10 o'clock this morning.
Unless something is done between now at that time it seems certain that the int step will be taken on the line indicated.

As soon as the house met yesterday morning ds of Dr. Baldwin and of Mr. Fleming bean to confer with a hope of bringing about factory adjustment. Two well-known men went to Dr. Baldwin and earnestly wised him to withdraw the harsh language nich he had used against Mr. Fleming. He se unwilling to do so unless Mr. Fleming de a statement to the house that in his reserve of the day before he had not intended any reflection on the alliance in using the exon quoted in the following extract from report of his remarks:

he report of his remarks:

Mr. Fleming said that this legislature, above all thers, should not be willing to make such an arming increase in the tax rate. "For," said k, "It is made up principally of alliancemen, and, as one of the chief purposes of the order is mid to be the reform of abuses and economization in matter of state expenditures, it should not consent to put this first distinctive alliance legis lines in the tax rate of the state."

Mr. Fleming's Position. Mr. Fleming, cool and resolute, stated to cintment of any committee on his part, as whing that he had said had exceeded the ands of parliamentary ethics. He could do othing until the violent and harsh language Dr. Baldwin had been withdrawn. His language above quoted was nothing more than an argument in the expression of his meetings, and they may feel as fill be highly entertained and the time and trouble of atd.—Sam Jones will not speak a might, as announced.

In the expression of his ways, and an appeal to the alliancemen of their cardinal principles, in which, he had stated in his talk, he was willing to co-operate with them. He had made an appeal for low taxes, and had said subling in his remarks that could justly be resident on the alliance and resident on the alliancement of the alliancement of the alliancement of the carry out one of the alliancement of the carry out one of their cardinal principles, in which, he had stated in his talk, he was willing to co-operate with them. He had made an appeal for low taxes, and had said subling in his remarks that could justly be resident. red as a reflection on the alliance, and many of the alliance members of the house had so told him. For this reason he was un-willing to put himself in the position of an willing to put himself in the position of an apologist when he had no cause for apology, particularly so when he was acting un the severe imputation of the language of Dr. Baldwin.

Dr. Baldwin's Stand. Dr. Baldwin was again approached, and a number of the members of the house went to im with the request that he first withdraw his violent language against Mr. Fleming, and with the assurance that that obstacle being removed, Mr. Fleming was willing to do any-thing within reason to settle the matter. Dr. Baldwin could not see it in that way, and would not apologize for his language. He argued that what he did say was based on the ea that Mr. Fleming had intentionally cast a ur on the alliance before his harsh language had been used. Should he state that such was not his intention, he would be willing to retract his language.

Thus the matter rested until the afternoon bession, when friends, seeing that he would not retract, pursuaded Dr. Baldwin to leave his part of the affair to a committee of his own selection, which would consider the matter and advise him what to do.

Dr. Baldwin consented to this arrangement, and appointed, Messrs. Hagan, Kennon and iton, of Wayne, three close friends, and all active alliancer

In Conference These three gentlemen met at 3 o'clock, an d continued in session for two hours, several mutual friends of Mr. Fleming and Dr. Dr. Baldwin, having, first made use of insulting anguage toward Mr. Fleming, should with-draw such language, and that Mr. Fleming would be ready to promptly accept the same, and make a statement disavowing any such intention as was attributed to him by Dr.

Baldwin.
Indeed, Mr. Fleming did not hesitate to say during the day in conversing with his friends that nothing was further from his intention What he had said was simply in the course of his remarks, and was really intended as a compliment to its purpose of reform and the reduction of expenditures. As it was not his purpose to reflect on the alliance, he was unwilling to take the first step as an apologist for

Dr. Chappell Called In.

After a conference of about an hour, during which time not much progress had been made, it was suggested that Dr. Chappell, of Laurens, a devoted allianceman, be called in and asked for his opinion in the premises.

The doctor soon came and did not hesitate to suggest that in his opinion it would be proper for Dr. Baldwin to first withdraw his violent language of personal aspersion against Mr. Fleming, and that then Mr. Fleming could disclaim any intention of reflecting on the alliance or Dr. Baldwin if he chose to do so.

discussion was within the rules of parlismentary repartee, and was not insulting."

Dr. Chappell then withdrew, and Dr. Baldwin's friends continued the discussion.

Mr. Thoraton finally asked to be excused from the committee, and Messra. Hagan and Kennon continued. They were both of the opinion that Mr. Fleming should take the first step, and matters were in this shape at the time of adjournment of the afternoon session.

Mr. Williams and His Note.

When the committee emerged from its conference Mr. Williams, who had been present awaiting its decision, was ready to deliver Mr. Fleming's note to Dr. Baldwin. He had withheld it until 5 o'clock in hope that a settlement would be reached before adjournment, and that Dr. Baldwin would make a statement to the house, withdrawing his abusive language against Mr. Fleming.

"Do you make this request as the friend of Dr. Baldwin?" said Mr. Williams, and on being affirmatively answered, he replied that the matter would stop where it was until 10 o'clock this morning, at their request. And so the matter stands.

It is hard to prophecy the outcome. Gossip About It.

Gossip About It.

The trouble was generally discussed by the members of the house yesterday, and every member earnestly hopes that an amicable adjustment will be reached today.

A great many members of the alliance did not consider that Mr. Fleming's remarks were in the alliance time that the statement of the supportant of the support of the support in the slightest intended as a reflection on the order, and thought that Dr. Baldwin's construction was unfounded.

Mr. Sibley, of Cobb, in speaking of the matter, said: "I am sure that Mr. Fleming had no such intention, and the alliancemen of the house do not so consider it. Indeed, he praised rather than censured the alliance. I look upon him as one of our strongest friends outside of the order, and certainly admire him for his maniliness and his coolness. Dr. Baldwin is also a man of courage, and I hope on reflection that he will withdraw his harsh personal language against Mr. Fleming."

An amusing feature of the whole case is in the fact that Dr. Baldwin, in talking of the matter to his friends, does not hesitate to pay high tribute to Mr. Fleming's ability and to express his high admiration for him as a man. Mr. Fleming also eschews any harshness in his references to Dr. Baldwin.

Dr. Baldwin admits that his language was severer then he intended to use, and the only question now at stake is, as to who shall make the first apology.

he first apology.

Today Will Tell. Today Will Tell.

The matter will probably reach a climax today. It is sincerely to be hoped that a satisfactory explanation will be made this morning, and it is but a fair summing up of the sentiment of the house to say that Dr. Baldwin's friends, of whom there are many in the house, think that as a man of courage and bravery, he should not hesitate to withdraw the harsh language used against Mr. Fleming, which was really the first insult that was passed. Such a course would settle the whole matter without compromising him in the passed. Such a course would settle the whole matter without compromising him in the slightest, and it would be heartly applauded by the house.

Fifty they must each have and the man who is fortunate enough not to meet a bank with a pretty, laughing possessor, was born lucky.

"Please, won't you give me a dime?"

For three days this has been the scene enacted, with a thousand bright school misses as the center. It is the project of some fertile brain, that needed to originate a way to raise $5,000 for the hospital. The young men about town, who formerly gladly met these girls as they tripped home from school, now walk the other side or sink into a byway. Old men look back at the time when they were dodging creditors, and declare it is hard to tell which is the more difficult of the two.

Who can decline to please this noble band of little workers, as they go about anxious to gather their fifty dimes, fill their bank and return it to "teacher" first? What matters it if you have given to twenty others? It is just a you have given to twenty others? It is just a little dime! And just so many of those little dimes will build one-twentieth of the hospital.

They fare now actively at work ascertaining the advisability of organizing one.

The grocers association held a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday night. The matter of starting a bank came up for discussion. Fully fifty grocers were present and the sentiment seemed pretty generally in favor of it.

A committee of nine was appointed, with Mr. C. J. Kamper as chairman, which will procure a charter in a few days, and then start to work to see if enough stock can be subscribed for opening the bank. If the prospects are in the least encouraging, the bank will be a go.

The Canning Manufacturing Company plan is in statu quo. The chances of its being started are not as bright as those more actively interested would care to see it. Three acres of ground have been offered seven miles up the Georgia road and other inducements will no doubt tend to stir up more work in behalf of the industry.

The organizing of a bank, would, it is thought, solve this problem.

CAPTAIN ENGLISH

Replies to the Card of President Hurt, of the Consolidated.

SPICY PRESENTATION OF FACTS

Which Led Up to the Recent Order of President Hurt, Prescribing How Policemen Shall Dress for Free Rides.

Captain James W. English furnishes the following reply to the card of President Joel Hurt, of the Consolidated:

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—I feel called upon to say

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—I feel called upon to say something more in reply to President Hurt's card published in Tuesday's paper. The case is: "The Police Force of Atlanta vs. the Consolidated Street Railway Company." Mr. Hurt says: "That my interview in Sunday's paper contained various misrepresentations." I have reviewed everything that I said in that interview, and cannot detect a single misrepresentation made by me in that article, and I now call upon President Hurt to point out the misstatements he alludes to. When he does, if there is any question of veracity raised between him and myself, I am perfectly willing for the public to decide which one of us has been guilty of misrepresentation. of us has been guilty of misrepresentation. Among other things, he says: "That I accused him of offering special privileges to the police-men doing duty at Inman Park." If I did not do so in the article referred to, I do now accuse him of it, and that accusation is based upon Officer Whitley's report, as he had offered him free transportation, and denied it to the other officers doing usiness in citizen's clothing. He further states "that the Consolidated Street He further states "that the Consolidated Street Railway Company has endeavored to extend a courtesy." This I deny most emphatically, and I charge that he not only refuses to extend this courtesy on such terms as the police department could accept it, but denies the officers a courtesy that has been always extended to them ever since street cars have been used in Atlanta.

Street cars have been used in Atlanta.

President Hurt also charges that I seek to create a prejudice against his company by the use of such terms as "monopoly" and his bringing of men and women from Boston and other cities to be used as detectives on his street car line. I can only say in reply, that if this proved hurtful to Mr. Hurt, or his company, he should not have done so, and I certainly had no such purpose in mind when I made that statement. I wish both mind when I made that statement. I wish both President Hurt and his monopoly all the success that they deserve. If I entertained enmity towards either, I would let him alone, for he is jumping so high just now that he is likely to do the work of an enemy himself.

He claims that what I have said in print has met with such general disapproval that he deems further answer from him unnecessary. I am glad to know that he has found those in the community who sought to comfort him, but I suspect that if he heard such expressions, they came from those very close to him whose purpose it was to tickle his vanity.

What is the issue between President Hurt and myself? It is this: Mr. Hurt's action in requir-ing special policemen to pay their street car fare when traveling on his cars has struck the general public a severe blow through the police department in crippling their usefulness and ability to reach all parts of the city in the shortes; time, and thus inflicting serious injury on all classes of our people. He has taken from them, without cause, a privilege that they have enjoyed in Atlanta for many years in setting up an arbitrary rule that they must pay their street car fare or walk, regardless of the important public duty they may have been assigned to, with full knowledge of the fact that the city government has never provided them with money to pay transportation. when traveling on his cars has struck the gen

President Hurt stated in his article published their fare, as their failure to do so would deceiv his detectives and thus cause innocent men to be suspected of crime." I say that was not the mo-tive that moved him to establish his arbitrary rulo—it is the nickels he is after and demands rule—it is the nickels he is after and demands from those officers. If he wanted to transport any of those officers free, his fertile brain could speedily devise a plan by which his company would be fully protected, and the officers ac-corded a privilege that all feel they are justly entitled to, especially se, in view of the fact that they are the servants of the citizens of Atlanta, and that all our recopic look to them for prompt protection. the servants of the citizens of Atlanta, and that all our people look to them for prompt protection, both as to persons and to property. I take the liberty of suggesting to President Hurt that if he wanted to render the public this great service, he can easily do so by supplying those special men each with a small package of tickets similar to those he used on his Edgewood street car line when that road was first opened.

I observe that in President Hurt's article today, he devets one-third of the ances to advertising he devotes one-third of the space to advertising his street car line and in promising great thing to the public in future, that calls for no commen from me. I, as a citizen and taxpayer, hope the public will realize all the benefits he has prom-ised them; they are surely entitled to a good deal from him in return for what the people have given his street car monopoly.

From the interview published in yesterday evening's Journal, said to have occurred between Chief of Police Connolly, Assistant Chief Couch and Captain Manley, President Hurt must have and captain maney, resident furth must have serious complaints against one or more of those officers. If he has, I ask him, in the name of the board of police commissioners, that he will file his charges in the manner prescribed by the ordinances of the city, and the board will bring the offending officers to speedy trial. If we fail to do President Hurt full justice, she can then cite the board to appear before the mayor and general council of this city, where he can no doubt get redress for all his grievances, whether they are real or imag inary.

I venture to express the hope that President Hurt, will rescind his arbitrary order, and that he, with all other citizens, will do everything in his power to aid us in giving to all classes of our people the police protection that they are entitled to, and that many of them would be necessarily denied if President Hurt persists in carrying out his present rule.

Let us all pull together in the interest of everything that will build up Atlanta and protect her people. The motto of all should be "private interests should yield to the public good."

ELECTRICITY TO CHATTAHOOCHEE.

To Ride the Children to the Pienic Of the many enterprises which Atlanta has originated and carried to a successful completion, none deserve to rank higher in the scale of public opinion than the completion of the electric line of the Atlanta and Chattahoochee company to the Chattahoochee river.

This line has been graded for over half the distance, and in a few months electric cars will be running up Jones avenue, across Marietts street to Luckie, thence to Walton, at 1ts Forsyth street junction.

The capitalists who have this enterprise in hand, have thus far met with a co-operation of the property owners along the line, that is so necessary in the completion of these enterprises. A new impetis was given the expansion of the different electric lines from Atlauta's center to her suburbs and over her country roads, the other day by the action of the county commissioners, in granting free a right of way over Fulton's country roads. The action was both wise and productive of much good to the whole country.

These electric lines bring the people closer together, increase the value of real estate, more taxes are paid and the country man as well as the city man reaps the benefits, as shown in the steady advance of farms along the main line of the Atlanta and Chattahoochee electric line. The organization of large companies in this section shows the wonderful effects. The most prominent of these companies, is and one in which Atlanta is so largely interested, is the Chattahoochee hand, have thus far met with a co-operat

If these discussions occur, they will be brought about by the Young Men's Democratic League.

Five or six days ago some member of the executive committee of the league suggested to the other members of the lague that a broad discussion of the live political issues now before the people would be a good thing. The idea took, and it was thought that no better time could be had for discussion of these questions than while the legislature was in session.

A prominent member of the executive committee said yesterday:

"These discussions would be a great thing, and I hope they will come off. We want fair and broad-minded discussion with all personalities left out. If a man states his position, let him give his reasons for the faith that is in him. It would be a campaign of education that would result in great good."

It is quite likely that Chairman Charley Northen, of the executive committee of the league, will call the committee together in a day or so, and letters written to the gentlemen mentioned, asking them to debate on the subjects named.

The injuries received may prove fatal. The accident occurred at the corner o Spring and West Baker streets.

At the time of the accident Poss, with four or five other men, was engaged re pairing the Luckie street electric line. He was standing on top of a ladder which reached to the trolly wire, and was trying to fasten it to the cross wire. The other men were busy at their work near by, and paid no attention to Poss. Suddenly they heard a sharp cry, and ooking around saw Poss clinging to the wire, his face writhing in agony. He continued screaming as they rushed to him to render him assistance. He was constantly pulling and jerking, trying to free himself from the wire, but it adhered to his hand and he couldn't get loose. His eyes were bulged out in a frightful way, and his mouth was wide open. Seeing that he could not loose his hand from the electric wire, Poss began to back down the ladder, with the wire in his hand. He had made but two steps, when with a loud cry of pain, he reeled and fell backward off the ladder. The men rushed to catch him, but were too late, and he received the full force of the fall. He fell ten or twelve feet, his head striking the belgian blocks. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried into a house near by. Messengers were sent for medical aid, and Dr. Lawshe and two others responded. Upon examination the collar bone of the njured man was found to be broken. The physicians rendered all the medical asistance in their power, and the man was taken to his home at 109 Plum street. Poss is a married man, and has been in the employ of the Consolidated Street Railway Company for about a month and a half.

His injuries are very dangerous, and may prove fatal. He remained unconscious for several hours.

GOOD MORNING, BUD,

How do you do this Morning?"

YOU'RE WELCOME TO THE STORE!

Reliable Work!

Today begins in earnest the Autum's and Winter's business in our Merchant Tailoring. We are going to do more of it than ever before. We're going to do it better. Most of the Woolens in the piece can now be seen. Many of them have come to us right off the looms, in fact, were made especially for us in Europe, and personally selected on the spot.

Next, we have added new brains and experience. Maybe we thought we knew it all. We didn't. We're progressing, however.

Haven't said anything about prices. Come in and look it all over. You'll be pleased with the goods, the service, and wonder how we can afford to do it, in some instances, for so little.

These Were Lost:

These Were Lost:

An important bill was lost yesterday and will be reconsidered today. It is by Mr. Williams, of Richmond, to amend article section 18, paragraph 1 of the constitution. It was taken up by special order. The paramph as amended reads as follows:

The right of trial by jury, except where it is sharwise provided in this constitution, shall reasin inviolate, but the general assembly may prescribe any number not less than five to constitutes a trail or traverse jury in courts other than the mperior and city courts, except also in all civil muses in the superior and city courts of this state, three-fourths or more of the jurors in said ames may render a verdict.

The bill required 117 votes.

It had 103, against 30.

Jury Bill.

Jury Bill.

It had 103, against 30.

Jury Bill.

Mr. Williams argued at length the constitutional feature of the bill. He said the constitution would have to be amended, for in every constitution the jury trial contemplated in them since 1798 and before was that the jury should unanimously agree to a verdict. He cited a long line of decisions, and concluded with the decision of Judge Nisbet, of the surgeme court, who said that one of the main features of a jury trial in this state was that the twelve should agree, "however unwise the rule might be." He also cited Judge Cooledge's constitutional limitations, who, said one of the incidents of common law trial by jury was unanimity, though he thought the rule unwise and contrary to all reason and human experience, giving these nine-reasons.

1. Mr. Williams contended that one man abould not be given the power to dominate seven others, who were Il to 1 presumed to be right, and he elaborated this point with many illustrations, calling attention to the fact that under the English system the finds could have the pury around in a cartinom one court of assize to another until they did agree, while our judges have no such power; hence the pregnancy of mistrials.

2. Our present jury system brings the courts into disrepute by frequent mistrials. That metion aided litigants to get speedy justice, menticed the courts, the people and the bar.

3. The tremendous cost to the taxpayers of the state by mistrials. One case he cited there over one thousand dollars accumulated a court costs, hesides a laborious trial and thorneys' fees, and the court and litigants could have to go over all this again, with mistrials that the same results. Many other cases and cited.

the one obstinate juror refuses to be governed by eleven others. So the change would not be so radical after all.

5. In other countries in continental Europe all civil cases were submitted to the judge with the facts.

6. The bill was in accord with democratic institutions. A majority of votes elected legislators, congressmen and senators. A two-thirds vote of the senate of the United States could impeach a president, or of the state senate a governor. A majority of judges of the supreme court of the United States or of the state supreme court could render a decision. Why should rights before a jury be more sacred than before these high courts of last resort?

7. The bill interfered with none of the great precedents of and the wisdom of the law; it was merely a shorter way to a result in procedure. This point was elaborated.

8. The Georgia Bar Association, after Mr. Peabody's able paper, desired the bill. The committee on remedial procedure of the American Bar Association recommended it. He then referred to many lesters from able judges in the state who desired it.

9. He showed this to be one of the most important measures before the house, and read numerous authorities that sustained his views, such as Fersyth, on "Jury Trials," and others. The "dog law," by Mr. Graves, of Newton, was killed jesterday.

It was lost once and reconsidered. The vote yesterday was 75 to 68.

An important temperance measure was one by Mr. Jones, of Dodge, which came up yesterday resterday was 75 to 68.

An important temperance measure was one by Mr. Jones, of Dodge, which came up yesterday on its third reading and was lost. It provides that "a revenue license issued by the federal government shall be prima facie evidence that the person of persons to whom issued deals either in person or by agent, in the sale of spirituous or mait liquors, and the said license shall be so received in evidence upon the trial of any person after indictment for the violation of any law forbidding the sale or furnishing of spirituous or mait liquors; but said prims facie evidence may be rebutted by competent legal proof, as in other cases."

The yeas were 35, and the nays 30.

The bill will probably be reconsidered.

And This Was Tabled.

And This Was Tabled.

The bill to amend the appropriation act of last year—in the paragraph of section 4 relating to public schools—was tabled.

It proposes to strike from that paragraph the words: "Should the returns of taxable It proposes to strike from that paragraph the words: "Should the returns of taxable property for the year 1891 and for the year 1892 prove to be greater than $415,000,000, then and in that case the sums arising from; the general tax levy upon said returns of taxable property in excess of $415,000,000 is hereby appropriated to the common school fund of the state, in addition to $500,000 by this act for the years 1891 and 1892, and in addition to the moneys appropriated under existing laws to the common school fund."

THE SENATE.

The Bill to Imprison for Non-Payment Debts Defeated.

The bill to make nenal the nonlaborers and others with their contracts where advances have been made them on false promises to pay for the same in labor or other rvice, was the chief matter acted upon by the senate vesterday.

The bill was vigorously pummeled by the best orators of the senate. Its iniquities were oroughly exposed, and then it was voted wn. But the margin was close.

The vote stood 19 to 21.

Mr. Cabaniss opened the discussion in a short, concise and strong speech against the bill, saying that he would gladly support the same if he could do so, but being satisfied beyond a doubt that, the bill is unconstitutional he could not do so: The first section, seeking to make it penal for laborers obtaining advances of noney, clothing or provisions upon a contract of labor to be performed and failing to render the service, is but another name for imrisonment for debt.

The second section, which makes it penal for an employer to fail to pay an employe for labor performed, whether for a day, a week, month or year is still more clearly The provisos of the first section, if the bill s constitutional, would render it very diffioult of enforcement.

The bill, if enacted into a law, would be more prolific of indictments and prosecutions than the whole of the penal code of Georgia. It would be a bill eminently beneficial to lawyers, and detrimental to farmers and Senator Walker argued briefly for the bill, declaring it to be a just and fair measure to Senator Callaway, the handsome, dapper and eloquent young senator from Burke, came in next with a spleudid argument against the bill-an argument which was listened to attentively by every senator on the floor-and

"Much to my surprise," said Mr. Callaway, "there seems to be a disposition on the part of the senate to consider this bill seriously. The bill is unconstitutional. It is class legislation It violates that clause of the constitution which says, 'There shall be no imprisonment for debt.'

"Just at this time our whole people have been stirred up by class legislation, and here we are endeavoring to repeat such acts. To pass this bill you place the thumbscrew of ssion in the hands of one class to be tightened upon laborers. Are you going to say: In the state of Georgia there shall be imprison-ened upon laborers. Are you going to say: In the state of Georgia there shall be imprisonment for debt. If you pass this bill your courthouses will not hold the cases. I hope the senators are not serious in wanting to pass this bill. It is an insult to the progress of the age.

"Here we stand, crying out against the monopoly of Wall street, and still we are attempting to depress those below us."

Senator Callaway's speech carried the senate with it, and the bill was voted down, defeated by a vote of 19 to 21.

Mr. Fleming's house resolution for the appointment of a joint committee to find out why the senate committee on public schools has not acted on the two general educational bills passed by the house was non-concurred in.

This means that the senate is determined to stand by its bill which the senators claim embody the provisions of both house bills, and which is now pending in the house.

A bill to extend the time to the 1st of May for driving cattle across certain lines in White county was passed.

New Senate Bills. New bills were introduced in the senate yeserday as follows:

By Mr. Terrell-To incorporate the Woodbury Banking Company.

By Mr. Terrell—For the protection of the capitol building, empowering the janitor and watchman to make arrests in certain cases. By Mr. Williams-Amending the charter of the town of Tybee.

By Mr. McRae—To incorporate the town of Milan, in the counties of Telfair and Dodge.

"This is a happy couple—a well-mated pair."
"In their case marriage will not be a failure." And there were many other such optimistic The husband was considerably older than the was beautifully bridged by an ehuberent love on the one side and an implicit trust on the other.

Mrs. McMillan, to the surprise of a goo many of her friends, declared that her married was not so happy as she had fondly and inter was not so happy as she had tondy anto-ipated. The links in the marriage chain began to gall her and she became petudant and disheartened. Her rosy cheeks lost some of their color, and her manners became constrained, and her step lost its elasticity. Her anxious friends observed these symptoms with alarm, and ascribed her depressed spirits to illness, but the young wife asseverated that she was perfectly well. Finally it transpired that her husband was treating her cruelly; that he had become addicted to drink and his love for the cup grew stronger than his love for his wife.

She was prevailed to seek a separation from her husband and she importuned the court to nullify the marriage and give her a divorce. In her libel for a divorce she alleged that her husband was an habitual drunkard and sometimes maltreated her; that he was inordinately jealous, and instead of making her life happy rendered it miserable. She urged incompatability of dispositions and uncongenial temperaments as grounds for a divorce. Her libel was duly filed in the superior court of Fulton county.

Her husband was duly served with notice of his wife's proceedings, and he determined to contest her libel for divorce. He indignantly repelled the charges of drunkenness and cruelty his wife alleged in her complaint, and he resolved to vindicate himself before the courts and hold fast to his loved if not loving helpmeet. He recounted in plaintive accents his grievances and besought his wife to withdraw he petition. She was obdurate. "I am determined to get a divorce," she ex-claimed, "if there is any law in Atlanta. My marriage is a dismal failure, and I want it annulled by the court." "If you get the divorce, will you ever marry again?" asked one of her friends.

"I cannot say," naively replied the unhappy wife. Yesterday morning the respondent, through his attorneys, Messrs. Arnold & Arnold, filed an answer to Mrs. McMillan's libel for divorce It is a rich document, drawn in that masterly style for which these lawyers are Among other answers, it says: "Answering the allegations contained in the petitioner's complaint, the defendant says that the petitioner has not any good ground for divorce; that she did not in all respects deport herself as true and loyal wife. She wanted to board a houses where there were few women and plenty of men. He wanted to retire at 10 o'clock at night, but she refused to go to her room, and he was compelled to lie upon a lonely couch while she was up talking to young men. She was too familiar with strange men on a short acquaintance. On one occa sion she fell desperately in love with a strolling player at Hickory, N. C. Her se were irrepressible and outgushing, and she was compelled to write them to her sister."

The husband surreptitiously got possession of this epistle. In his answer he characterized it accurately. It is a rather "irrepressible and outgushing"

THE PINE TRUST

Organized by the Lumber Manufacturers of North Carolina.

A HUNDRED CONCERNS COMBINED IN ONE

▲ Combination with a Capital of Ten Million Dollars—The Lumbermen's Heroic Remedy for the Destruction of Pine.

The pine lumber manufacturers of North Carolina have organized in a combination to reduce the output and advance the price of

They say that at the present rate of production the pine forests of North Carolina will be destroyed and the manufacturers will have nothing to show for the immense and destructive business they have carried on.

A Norfolk special to The Richmond Times gives the details. Writing on the 21st the correspondent says:

There will assemble in this city tomorrow, at 10:30 s. m., one of the most important meetings ever held in Norfolk. It is called for the purpose solidating the individual manufacturers of North Carolina pine lumber into a stock company with an estimated capital of $10,000,000. This scheme has been quietly working for several months, and when formed will be a gigantic trust organized for the purpose of controlling the lum-

It was put on foot early in the summer by the Carolina Dressed Lumber Association, J. L. Carolina Dressed Lumber Association, J. L. Roper, president, and John Harker, secretary, inviting leading manufacturers to a meeting to be held for the purpose of drawing up plans. At first it was difficult to secure co-operation. Manufacturers were slow to take hold of a scheme of which they knew little, and the first meeting in this city was but alimly attended. Later it was decided to send out a leading lumberman to feel the pulse of the manufac-turers. For this important work Mr. Franklin Knight, of Philadelphia, was selected. He visited the leading manufacturers and his work speaks for itself. Under his pursuasive eloquence their fears were removed, and in a few weeks he reported to the Norfolk office that a large percentage of the dressed lumber output had signed all necessary documents and would join the combination.

On the 25th of September another circular was issued, and among other things it says: "For your information we give a list of those who are willing to subscribe to the company, viz: Johnson & Wimsatt, and Thomas W. Smith, Washington, D. C.; Mulherin & Dale, Otto Duker & Co., E. W. Hartsmeir & Son, the Tunis Lumber Company, G. F. Sloan & Brother, George G. Tyler. Baltimore, Md.; W. L. Parsley, Boesch & Brother, Wilmington, N. C.; John L. Roper Lumber Company, Norlolk, Va.; Southern Lumber Company, O. B. Leet & Co., Suffolk, Va.; J. C.; Pioneer Lumber Company, Nount Olive, N. C., D. W. Alderman & Co., Alcolu, S. C."

The circular further says: "It is apparent from the above list that the scheme is an assured success, and a stock company can now be formed without any difficulty. The importance of the vast business in dressed lumber manufacturers in Virginia and the Carolinas ought to stir us up to the necessity of protection.

To Advance Prices.

"Resulting, as we hope it will, in getting an advance upon the low prices which have been hitherto obtained; it is only a question of a few years at the present rate of production when this important business will be a matter of the past, and unless something is done now with combined efforts to get all the money out of it possible in time to come many will regret not taking a deep interest in the movement. We now call a meeting to be held at the office of John L. Roper Lumber Company, Norfolk, Va., Tuesday, the 22d instant, and we hope to have many concerns represented, and without urging you, we think you will see the necessity of doing so at present." This circular was addressed to John Harker, secretary of the Carolina association, an organization which has a membership of about one hundred, and it is understood that they will join. At once prices will be advanced, and a To Advance Prices.

This afternoon, he and Mr. Tom Little-both operatives in the Finger & Shelby shoe factory of the city-were out turkey hunting. They had succeeded in killing one turkey and heard another in the vicinity where the first was killed. Mr. Clark was stationed at a point and Mr. Little went off some distance from Clark to watch for an opportunity to kill the other. Clark became impatient and whipped around through the bushes and unobserved came in gun shot of Little, who seeing his (Brown's) coat through the bushes took aim and fired, when to his horror he discovered that he fired quite a number of buckshot into the breast, neck and arms of his companion. Mr. Clark is lying in a critical condition at the house of his father, Mr. Ben Clark, and his life is considered to be in danger.

THE NEW YORK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

NEW YORK, September 23.—It is now generally expected in Wall street that the Bank of England, at its weekly meeting tomorrow morning, will advance the minimum rate of discount in order to more nearly its weekly meeting tomorrow morning, will advance the minimum rate of discount in order to more nearly approximate the rates in the open market, and incidentally to protect its gold reserve. There has been for the last week here a steadily hardening tendency in the money market, and this hardening bids fair to neutralize such efforts of the bank to prevent the shipment of gold to these shores. In view of the present sitte of the foreign exchange market, and the movements of merchandise and securities, the determined attempt to manipulate the money market yesterday and again this morning proved a complete failure. Money has been in abundance all day. The marke this morning was still weak under the pressure to sell from both bulls and bears at the opening, and the first sales were made at declines from last evening's figures of from ½ to ½ per cent. The market gathered strength immediately under the early demand, but later the efforts at depression became felt, prices slowly drooping in most shares, while many scored material declines. The downward movement lasted until well into the forenoon, when money began to be offered more freely, and the rates eased up to 2 per cent at the close, while there was no lack of funds to loan at any time during the day. The Gould stocks were the weakest routs. loan at any time during the day. The Gould stocks were the weakest points in the list, and with a few loan at any time during the day. The Gould stocks were the weakest points in the list, and with a few specialties scored losses extending to 2½ per cent, while the rest of the list generally only brought fractions below the level of the opening figures. The buying in the afternoon, and especially in the last hour, was very spirited, the Chicago operators appearing again in the market as purchasers of their favorites, and Burlington, Wheeling and Lake Eric preferred, Lackawanna and Northern Pacific preferred showed the greatest strength. The market closed active and strong at the highest prices of the day. The final changes are generally small fractional gains, but Atchison rose 1½ on a very large business. Burlington 1½, and Reading 1 per cent. Among the low-priced shares Lake Eric and Western and Southern Pacific were specially prominent for strength, the latter rising 2 per cent. NEW YORK, September 22.—The market today opened weak under the effect of Europe selling. The high rate for money yesterday afternoon, which came about in the way we explained yesterday, attracted universal attention and oroughts flood-of-selling orders from the country. To show how perfectly artificial this rate was, the opening for money was from 7 to 8 per cent and the brokers declared their wants early in the day and from 2:30 to 3 o'clock 4 per cent was the selling rate. Of course, as long as this kind of speculation keeps up we can expect more or less tight money. lation keeps up we can expect more or less tight money though $10,000,000 are on the way to this country from

When it was seen that the rate of money eased, the sweets tusted to cover and it was surprising to see low few stocks there were in the market. The closing was very strong and it certainly looks nealthier, owing to the reaction. This morning Cam-mack was a persistent seller, but his stocks were

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, September 22.—There were no evidences in any of the trading pits this morning, or, in fact, during the most of the session, of the crash with which S. V. White & Co. went down yesterday. In fact, during a good part of the session both wheat and corn were strong. After opening at or above yesterday's closing prices, there were advances until the prices reached were about those prevailing before the White failure. Then came a period of dullness and weakness, and finally a slump, in which marked declines were recorded, knocking off all of the previous advances and more, and the close in all of the articles dealt in on the floor was at or near the bottom prices of the day, provisions, unlike cereals, having been weak throughout the session.

December wheat, which closed at 99c yesterday, opened at 98693%c, and, with some minor reactions, sold up to 100%c, saged off to 99%c, firmed up some, but in the last hour broke badly to 88%c, a fall of 2c from the top figures of the day, and closed at the bottom. The slump was due to late lower cables, a weakness in corn and the fact that the available supply on both coasts had increase: dover 3,000,000 bushels during the past week. A good deal of long wheat was thrown on the market, and the bear sentiment became quite aggressive. All the late cables reported lower markets abroad except at Antwerp.

Trading in corn was somewhat spasmodic. It opened active, strong and higher. The demand was largely for October, and seemed to come principally from New York. Opening at 49%c, against 49c, the closing price yesterday, there was an irregular advance to 50%c. September was quiet but strong and sold from the same as October to ½c premium, against ¼c discount yester-December wheat, which closed at 99c yesterday as October to '4c premium, against '4c discount yester day. In the afternoon an attempt was made to close me of White's September corn which was not liqui dated yesterday for fear of further demoralizing the dated yesterday for fear of further demoralizing the market. The crowd, however, was on the lookout for this move, and some of the early buyers, attempting at the same time to realize their profits, the result was a decided break, October going down to 49e and September receding from ½0 premium to ½0 discount, or 45%c, both closing at the bottom. An early strengthening feature was a telegram from Charles Counselman, now in New York, saying that not a bushel of cash corn held by the clique will come on the market, but will be held by the clique will come on the market, but will be shipped as originally designed.

Oats advanced some early with wheat and cern, but weakened later and closed at bottom prices. weakened later and closed at bottom prices.

Provisions were weak throughout the session, especially during the last hour, but firmed up a little atthelose. Compared with yesterday's final figures pork shows a loss of 32½c, lard 10@12½c and ribs 10@12½c.

Received over Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Private Wire by Messrs. Youngblood & Haas. CHICAGO, September 23 .-- Early cables were quite CHICAGO, September 23.—Early cables were quite generally easy and lower, but notwithstanding this fact wheat opened firm, partly on the short interest created by the selling on yesterday's failure and partly by reports of drought interfering with seeding. Under these influences the market advanced nearly 1 cent above the opening prices. At the advance, however, offerings became free and the weakness in the foreign situation was more strongly emphasized and some prominent operators sold freely. As the season advanced the weakness in cables was intensified and it was even stated that a cargo of wheat was sold in New York at 7 cents higher than it could have been sold for on the other side. Under such infinences early buyers turned sellers and the market became outse sold for on the other side. Under such influences early buyers turned sellers and the market became quite heavy and closed at the lowest point of the day, with the local bulls discouraged and the short interest becoming more aggressive. Among the influences tending to weaken the market was the signal service prediction of rain for Thursday.

Corn opened steady and it was feared the holdings of the defeated clique were yet to come on the market, but shippers were free buyers from the start and it was stated and believed that the clique holdings had was stated and believed that the clique holdings had been provided for, not only those in store, but the shipments in transit east, and under those influences shipments in transit east, and under those influences the market advanced quite sharply. As the season advanced these rumors were questioned and one by one the early buyers commenced unloading, and the market closed at the lowest point of the day. Some people feel that corn is low enough at these prices on its merits and that an advance should be established, while others are persistently claiming that cash corn will sell at 45 cents before the week is out.

Provisions were weak from the start, due to large receipts of hogs expected for next week and free selling for a prominent packer.

The Inquest Over the Body of Fireman Hicks—The Inquest.

The body of Fireman Hicks was carried to the undertaking establishment of Wylie & Barclay yesterday morning, and at that place Coroner Davis held an inquest.

The body was horribly mutilated and burned by the collision the night before, and was hardly recognizable. In the morning the jury could-not get witnesses enough to fully investigate the cause of the accident, and an afternoon sesion was held.

It was ascertained that the last train to leave the siding was way freight No. 9, in charge of Conductor Keel, and Flagman Guyton, of this train, swore that he locked the switch to the main line.

If he did this, and there was no evidence to the contrary, the switch could only have been misplaced by one of the foremen in charge of the work at this place in the road, or have been done maliciously. There was no proof to any of these, and the jury's verdict was to the effect that the switch was left open and the death caused through the negligence of the road or some of its employes. Engineer Hackney, while badly hurt, was able to attend the inquest. Messre. Miller and Wingfield, the two mail agents injured, were badly hurt, but neither is fatally wounded.

with the Oyster Law. SAVANNAH, Ga., September 23.—[Special.]—Property owners on the coast are organizing to make a vigorous fight in the legislature during the next few weeks for the repeal of the oyster law recently passed. It is proposed to endeavor to form an organization of the property owners along the coast for the purpose of protecting their interests, which it is claimed are seriously menaced by those oyster companies.

companies.

"Their representatives at Atlanta have succeeded in getting a law passed through false pretenses, as we believe," said one today, "which is decidedly inimical to our rights. We propose to do all in our power to show the legislature the wrong they have unintentionally perpetrated and, see if they cannot be induced to rectify the injustice."

WHY HE HAS A PREFERENCE FOR THEM.

They Can Give Needed Belief by Supply-ing More Money to the Prople. Illustrative Figures.

MURPREESBORO, Tenn., September 21.—Mr. James J. Bean, Lynchburg, Tenn. My Dear Sir: Your letter just received. You ask why I favor the organization of state banks and how can they ive relief in the way of supplying more money to

I will tell you why I favor them and how they can give relief. What, let me ask, is the real situation today so far as a bank circulation is concerned? Briefly and simply, it is this. No bank in this broad land can issue bank notes, circulation, money, except a national bank. Why? Because any other bank issuing money must pay each year a 10 per cent tax to the United States government on every dollar so issued. This is provided in the national banking act. It is done to give the national banks a monopoly of supplying money to the people. Well you may ask, Do you object to this? Is not the money good? I answer, yes, I do object to it. The money is good. The trouble is these national banks will not exercise the right gives them to issue money; they will not put their notes in circulation. I repeat it, under the law national banks alone can issue money, circulation, and they won't do it. Why? For the reason, they say, it will not and does not pay them to have circulation. The government taxes their circulation is percent per annum, not 10, and they say this is so onerous they will not claim the circulation than the contiletter and they we contilet to under the law. Let no tion. The government takes and they say this is per cent per annum, not 10, and they say this is so onerous they will not claim the circulation they are entitled to under the law. Let us accept this reason as true, for we know that if it was to their interest in a pecuniary way to take the circulation they would all do it without exception. That they do not take it is manifest. The First Natonal bank of Murfreesboro, my own town, is a most prosperous and safe institution, paying handsome dividends to its stockholders. town, is a most prosperous and safe institution, paying handsome dividends to its sucokholders. It has a capital of $100,000. It could have $90,000 of its own notes in circulation, each national bank being allowed circulation equal to 90 per cent of its capital. It actually has about twenty-two thousand dollars in circulation. The national banking capital of Nashville amounts in the aggregate $3,500,000.

The entire circulation of all the Nashville banks it couls $250,000.

gregate $3,500,000.

The entire circulation of all the Nashville banks is only $180,000, while they might have under the law, if they would, about three million dollars. Thus the situation is this: The government will not allow any bank but a national bank to issue circulation for the necessities and relief of the people, and while this is true, it so taxes them that they cannot afford to do it. Now I say this is a most anomalous condition, and, in my opinion, would not be endured or allowed to exist ninety days in any other free government under the sun. If the government is to deny the privilege of issuing money to all other than national banks, then it should require those favorites to issue the money It not only does not require them to issue it, but places such burdens on the issuance that they cannot do it with profit. Then I say reneal the 10 per cent tax on the circulation of all other than national banks, and allow states and individuals to bank and issue circulation, based of course always on solvent securities. Free banking would be more profitable than national banking. To show this fact take the following illustration prepared by an Alabamian:

Suppose three or more persons have $117,000 and be more profitable than national banking. To show this fact take the following illustration prepared by an Alabamian:

Suppose three or more persons have $117,000 and desire to organize a national bank and to issue the full amount of notes the law permits. They would take this $117,000 and pay it all for $100,000 United States 4 per cent bonds running sixteen years, worth $117,000.

They would deposit these $100,000 of bonds with the United States treasurer and receive from him in their own notes 90 per cent. $90,000 per cent. Less 5 per cent, left for redemption with

Total amount of interest received $173,440 Add at maturity principal of bonds 100,000

Total principal and interest received in sixteen years. $273,440

From this must be deducted—per cent tax per annum on circulation for sixteen years, $900x16....$14,400

$100 per annum printing sixteen years. $1,600

$500 per annum examination. $800 $16,800

Net receipts national bank..... $256,640

I take sixteen years because that is the length of time the 4 per cent bonds run. Now suppose the $117,000 invested in the national bank had been put in a state bank, what would the result have been:

The interest on $117,000 at 8 per cent would be for one year.....

Thus it is shown that the state or free banks would pay as well and better than national banks. It is demanded by the farmers and laborers of the country, and it is conceded by everybody, bankers and business men, that there should be a material increase in the circulating medium. Leaders are rising up to teach the people how to get it. Some favor and advocate such wholly impracticable measures as the so-called subtreasury bill and the land loan bill. To my mind the road to relief is clear. It is this: let congress repeal the national banking act, or at least so much of it as imposes the 10 per cent tax on the circulation of all others than national banks, provide for the free coinage of sliver and reduce the tariff to a strictly revenue basis. These, purely democratic measures, will give us all the money needed in circulation and will start us forthwith on such an era of prosperity as we have not known since the closing of the late unhappy war. Truly, your friend,

JAMES D. RICHARDSON.

Burglaries in Thomasville. THOMASVILLE, Ga., September 23.—[Special.]—Burglars paid the city a visit last night. The stores of John Stark and Schmidt were entered, and the contents of the cash drawers appropriated. Little or nothing else was taken. The buildings were entered in each case through the rear window. An attempt was also made to go through the store of Fallis & Son, but the thieves were unable to get in. No clue as to who the burglars were.

THE COUNTY COURTHOUSE.

sip Gathered Yesterday in the Van

Three courts were running at the same time yesterday in the county courthouse, yet very few cases were disposed of. The City Court.

In the city court of Atlanta, Judge Howard Van Epps presiding, the case of P. E. Hudson vs. the Georgia Pacific Railway Company, which has been on trial since last Monday which has been on trial since last Monday morning, was closed by the jury's returning a verdict for the plaintiff for $5,000. The amount sued for was $30,000.

The case of George P. Brown vs. the Richmond and Danville Railway Company for $5,000 damages, was begun. The plaintiff alleges, that while he was trying to board a passenger train it started off and he was badly injured. The case occupied the court the greater part of the occupied the court the greater part of the day. At the conclusion of Judge Pendleton's day. At the conclusion of Judge Pendleton's argument the court adjourned, to meet at 9 o'clock this morning.

He Wants Damages.

Mr. J. M. Edward yesterday instituted a suit for $3,000 damages against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company. The plaintiff avers in his complaint that the 23d of March, 1891, he made a contract with defendant to ship sixty head of cat tle and deliver them without delay at a certain destination. The company failed to keep its promise, and when the cattle were delivered, much later than had been sgreed upon, it was found that some were dead and others in very bad condition. The plaintiff says his losses, caused by the company's negligence, amount caused by the company's negligence, amount to $3,000. The papers were filed by Messrs. Glenn & Maddox.

The Criminal Court. Judge Westmoreland is rapidly clearing out the county jail of petty criminals. Within the past three days he has sentenced about twenty-five criminals to the chaingang.

Drawing Jurors. Drawing Jurors.

Yesterday Judge Marshall J. Clarke and Clerk Frank Myers spent an hour in open court drawing jurors for Judge Richard H. Clark's criminal court, which meets next Monday. Judge Clark has been holding a very busy session of court in Clayton. The criminal dockets are cumbered with a multiplicity of cases, from murder down. There will be three rape cases. This court tries only felonies, Judge Westmoreland's court having jurisdiction over misdemeanors. Seventy jurors were drawn, and summons will be sent out this morning, each juror being served in person.

The Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury. This morning the grand jury will meet and Solicitor General Hill will lay before the body some matters of special importance to the county. A number of gaming cases will be investigated. The body will likely visit all the county institutions and prepare a presentment. What the grand will jury do, however, is meanly conjuctural. is merely conjectural. Died Intestate.

Mr. J. C. Kimball left no will, and his son, Walter, has applied to the court of ordinary for letters of administration on the estate. This morning Ordinary Calhoun will make the COURT EVENTS AT JONESBORO. The Jail Cleared-Important Grand Jury Presentments.

JONESBORO, Ga., September 23.—[Special.] The superior court, Judge Richard H. Clark presiding, has adjourned after a laborious session of two weeks. Many cases on the civil docket were tried or otherwise disposed of. Several were important and strongly contested. Several were important and strongly contested. The jail was delivered of thirteen prisoners, and several bond cases tried. The grand jury expressed in their general presentments their satisfaction with the judge and solicitor general, and particularly alluded to the excellent condition of the civil docket under the administration of Judge Clark. They also expressed their unanimous opposition to the plan of changing Clayton to the Flint circuit, which would take the county out of its senatorial and congressional districts.

Captain W. T. Kimsey, so long the affable and efficient clerk of the court, was admitted to the bar. The examination did great credit to him, and many were surprised that a gentleman who had so long pursued other callings and was daily engaged in other business, could stand so excellent an examination.
